Telephones Won't Meet Demands For 'Long Time'

SPOKANE. — It will be a long time before the supply of telephones catches up with the demand, the president of the United States Independent Telephone association says. Harold V. Bozell, who is also president of the General Telephone corporation, spoke at the first joint session of the Washington and Oregon Independent Telephone associations.

Bozell told convention delegates there are now 270 telephones per thousand persons in this country compared with 300 per thousand in 1945. He said an increased wage level and standard of living have brought the telephone into more homes. "As quickly as we get 100 telephones installed for users, there is a new list of another 100," Bozell said. He added that the instrument could no longer be called a luxury but must be classified as a household necessity.
