

Congressman Blasts Charges Of Drew Pearson

ATLANT—(AP)—Rep. John S. Wood (D-Ga.) says columnist Drew Pearson has used smear tactics in charging that the congressman's office profited from passage of a special bill to aid a crippled youth. He flatly denied Pearson's charges.

The bill obtained $10,000 in federal funds for Ralph Stanfield who was struck by an army truck at Tate, Ga., in 1944.

Pearson charged Stanfield was "persuaded to pay an unjust fee to Congressman Wood's law partner and congressional employee" Darl Tallant.

Wood replied in a statement: "The first knowledge I had of the Stanfield case was when Mr. D. Carl Tallant, an attorney of Canton, Ga., sent me certain affidavits from witnesses to an accident in which an army truck struck and severely injured this boy."

The congressman said he then introduced the special bill to obtain payment for Stanfield.

Wood said Tallant also served the Stanfield family in some guardianship proceedings and "he charged a fee of 10 per cent for his services."

Wood said any insinuation that he profited personally from the matter was "utterly false and in keeping with the guttersnipe tactics of this arch liar and character assassin, Drew Pearson."

Lawyer Says Colleagues Don't Know Good English

SALEM—(AP)—Do lawyers know how to use the English language? Dean William L. Prosser of the University of California law school addressing the Lawyers' Alumni association of Willamette university Saturday night, he said increasing numbers of law students don't know how to spell common words, and don't know how to express themselves.

"When a student with 16 years of preparation and an AB degree is so inadequately prepared there is something radically wrong with the present day educational methods," he said.

He condemned the question and answer method of giving school examinations, saying they are too mechanical and don't give students a chance to express themselves.

West Coast Money Flows Faster During Last Month

Of the 33 reporting cities 28 from 1 percent in San Francisco to 45 percent in Fresno. Declines included 11 percent in Salem, Ore., and 13 percent in Reno.

The larger gains included 21 percent in Spokane and 20 percent in Eugene, Ore.

Debits for the first five months of the year were up over the similar 1949 period.
