

Appropriation Committee Says Use ECA Funds To Assist In Rearing Europe

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A move gained headway in the Senate to tap European recovery funds for part of the $1,000,000,000 cost of re-arming western Europe.

Members of the Senate appropriations committee are studying a possible amendment to the economic cooperation administration (ECA) act to lift some of the arms burden from the American taxpayer.

The idea was proposed first by Senator Lodge (R-Mass.), who works closely in foreign affairs with Republican Senator Vandenberg of Michigan. It has been picking up support despite opposition from ECA Chief Paul Hoffman.

There were reports, too, that President Truman's plan to aid backward areas of the world is under heavy fire within the senate appropriations committee.

These developments came as the senate foreign relations and armed services committee were called into a closed-door meeting (9:30 a.m., EST) to study a new draft of the foreign arms aid bill.

The measure would authorize a $1,222,500,000 overseas arms program. Some senators have balked at a provision which would give President Truman authority to use 10 percent of the funds wherever he believed they might be needed to re-arm friendly nations.

The new version of the bill is believed to put strings on this Presidential power to use funds in an emergency.

Senator Knowland (R-Calif) said appropriations committee members are "exploring fully" the possibility of using part of the $4,900,000,000 in reserve funds piled up by the Marshall plan countries.

For each dollar of American aid, the European nations put the equivalent of a dollar in their own money into an account to be used for recovery projects. These are known as counterpart funds.

The U. S. government has sole control over 5 percent of these funds. The other 95 percent can be spent only by agreement between the United States and the participating countries.

Both Bevin and Attlee reportedly feel that if the party statement had come either a little earlier or later, it would not have had the same effect.

Although the British are not taking part in a Schuman plan conference that begins Tuesday in Paris, they have made arrangements to be informed of all the details of the talks.

Preach What You Wish, Methodist Pastors Advised

PORTLAND, June 19—(AP)—The Oregon conference of Methodist churches closed here yesterday with Bishop Gerald H. Kennedy announcing assignments for pastors in the coming year.

In a Saturday speech Bishop Kennedy called for intellectual freedom in church conferences. It was interpreted as a defense for the sometimes-criticized Methodist federation for social action, which has spoken up on liberal issues.

"Anything can be brought up on the floor of the conference that anybody wants to bring up," the bishop said.

"If any group of people decides there is some subject they don't want brought up, that group doesn't belong in a Methodist church," he said.

The bishop also told three new ministers, "do not retreat one inch from stating your convictions . . . no layman has the right to tell you what to preach, and no bishop ever will."

The federation for social action presented three resolutions and the conference adopted them. They were: a proposal for regular reading before congregations of the church's social creed; commendation for Portland's enactment of an anti-discrimination ordinance; and a resolution opposing the Mundt-Ferguson-Nixon bill before Congress. The measure is popularly known as the bill to outlaw Communism. The resolution said it would endanger civil liberties.

The conference also passed a resolution calling for the President to create a secretary for peace in his cabinet.

Demonstration night for the vacation Bible school, being conducted by the Green community church, will be held Tuesday, June 20, at 8 p. m. at the schoolhouse. Each class will be featured in the program and casswork will be exhibited. The public is invited.

The Bible school is being extended through Tuesday noon at which time the children are asked to bring a sack lunch. Dessert will be furnished.

Teachers and helpers in the school are Mrs. Oscar DePriest, Mrs. Fred Winters and Mrs. William Paris, beginners department; Mrs. Charles Foree, Mrs. Marion Fortune and Mrs. Earl Koeler, primary department; Mrs. Henry Elliott, junior girls; Mrs. Emery Williams, junior boys and Miss Oser, young people.

Mrs. Oscar Hammer and Miss Delores Storey have acted as secretaries and Miss Ramona Foree as pianist. Drivers during the two-week school have been Mrs. Wayne Jacobs and Oscar Hammer.

Worker Need Not Retire To Get Old-Age Benefits

A worker over 65 doesn't have to retire permanently to receive benefits. He may enter or leave employment as often as he likes.

However, no benefit is payable for months in which he earns more than $1.99 on a job covered by the social security act. Social security benefits may be paid if an aged worker changes to a job that is not covered by the law.

Before benefits can be paid to a worker or survivor, an application must be filed. Payments are not made automatically.

To prevent possible loss of benefits, Paul F. Johnson, manager of the Eugene field office, urges that workers over 65 or survivors of workers who die, contact the local social security office at 1247 Willamette, Eugene, to obtain information, or contact a representative from the Eugene office who will be in Roseburg on Tuesday, June 20, at the city hall between 8:30 a. m. and noon to answer questions and take claims for old-age and survivors insurance benefits.

Death Claims Educator Who Guided Babe Ruth

FORT MONROE, Va., June 19—(AP)—The Catholic educator who guided the early career of baseball's Babe Ruth died yesterday at the age of 85.

The Rev. Brother Paul, C.F.X., was the oldest member in point of service of the Xaverian order, which he had served as superior general for nine years—the first American to gain that distinction.

Brother Paul was superintendent of St. Mary's industrial school in Baltimore for 18 years. Ruth was a student there during part of that period.

Still recalled is the story of how Brother Paul made a hurried trip to New York one time to bring encouragement to his famous pupil who was having a batting slump. The Babe came out of that one to set a new home run record.
