Philosopher Boyle Gives Tips To New Bridegroom Of June

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK — (AP) —Tips by the poor man's philosopher to a young June bridegroom:

Well, my boy, if you hope for a quick success in marriage today you're going to have to make a sharp break with the past.

Don't try to be the king in your kitchennette. Man has tried through the ages to rule his roost by force—and ended up just a mouse around the house. This is because he has never been able to make his muscle match women's indomitable will, her soft insistence on having her own way.

The thing to do is to confuse her, worry her into a position where she'll spend the rest of her life trying to make you happy.

You must remember that you are going into marriage completely unprepared. But she has been warned by her mother:

"He'll try to boss you dear. So you put the beast in his place right at the start."

The best thing you can do is to do the unexpected. Crush her with loving kindness. Bring her flowers every day from work and greet her with a kiss.

Don't Let Her Do A Thing

Don't let her lift her finger around the house. You do all the chores. You wash the windows, scrub the bathroom floor, run the cleaner, gallop to the grocery store. Do as much of the cooking as you can. And, above all, insist on washing the dishes and drying them all by yourself.

"No dishpan hands for my little darling," you can tell her.

Naturally she'll be comparing you critically to her own father. She'll be lonesome for her mother, too. So don't bring your own noisy friends home. Invite her parents over for dinner at least five nights a week.

Then belt her old man with martinis until he starts spilling ashes all over the rug and telling the same bragging stories your wife has heard since she was in kindergarten. When your mother-in-law comes into the kitchen and sniffs that the place is a mess, just answer humbly:

"I'm sorry. I do the very best I can, mother-in-law dear."

It won't take your wife long to decide that her old man had better do his drinking in his own home. And she isn't going to let any other woman — even her mother — boss you around. She'll get rid of them.

By now she knows she is practically useless, and guilt sweeps over her. And she is weary of your perpetual, cloying affection.

"Don't you have a hobby like other men?" she demands.

"I used to like to go bowling or play poker," you say. "But you are my hobby now, my dove. I wouldn't know what to do with myself if I went out without you."

You have her on the ropes now, and it is time for the clincher. Let her come into the living room a few times and discover you lying on the sofa, weeping silently. When she asks you what's the matter. Just mumble bravely:

"Oh, nothing, nothing. Just my silly old nerves, I guess."

That does it. She is completely frustrated. Before long she will be courting you — trying her best to please you. She will insist on doing all the housework herself. She will buy you pretty clothes. She will fork over money and force you to go out and spend evenings with the boys.
