Military-Diplomatic Cooperation Needed By U. S., Gen. Bradley Says
WASHINGTON—(4P)—Gen. Omar Bradley said here the present state of affairs requires the closest possible cooperation between the nation's military men and its diplomats.

"In peace," Bradley said, "the diplomat would be the principal spokesman for the American people in foreign affairs. In war, the soldier's advice is sought and heeded as we defend our nation.

"But today, in this half peace, half war, neither the soldier nor the diplomat alone can lead the American people in a wise course of international action. Both voices must be heard if American polices and the soldier nation is belief that the military must be heard if American and the peace of international action. Both voices must be heard if American people in a wise course of international action. Both voices must be heard if American polices in a wise course of international action. Both voices must be heard if American people in a wise course of international action are constant to the used in converting civilian production lines to tanks, aircraft, at the same time he made clear the soldier of international action. Both voices must be heard if American police in a wise course of international action. Both voices must be heard if American police in a wise course of international action. Both voices must be heard if American police in a wise course for international action. Both voices must be heard if American police in a wise course of international action. Both voices must be heard if American police in a wise course of international action. Both voices must be heard if American police in a wise course of international action. Both voices must be heard if American police in a wise course of international action. Both voices must be heard if American police in a wise course of international action in the soldier in forcing and policical contest. "But today, in this half peace, half war, neither the soldier nor the diplomat alone can lead the American people in a wise course of international action. Both voices must be heard if American policy is to be realistic and effective."

In a speech which he prepared for delivery at the graduation exercises of the National War college, Bradley said that while new yeapons pose a deterrent to aggression "they also place in the hands of any enemy the quick trigger of foreign policy." He auded:

remain under civilian control at all times. Under the American form of government, he said, the military can thus "best serve its purpose"

"Some nations can commit themselves in a matter of seconds."

Bradley's speech made no mention of the communist attack on South Korea. But it hammered at the theme that the democratic world is confronted by "an aggressive ideology which places its political faith and authority in the hands of military force."

"If our ideals of democracy could challenge communism in words alone," he said, "or in diplement of the process, wages, manpower and materials.

Plans Ready For United States

WASHINGTON, — (AP) — Detailed plans for putting this country on a war footing — if necessary — are ready for delivery to Congress. Drafted in a 20-title bill by the National Security Resources board they would authorize President truman to clamp a quick freeze on prices, wages, manpower and materials.
