

Two Interesting Speakers Heard At Kiwanis Meet

Maurice Newland, Kiwanis club president, gave a resume of his recent trip to the east coast, at the club's weekly meeting Wednesday noon at the Hotel Umpqua. Also George Springer, who is here on leave from his duty with the department of army headquarters in Paris, France, gave a brief impromptu talk on political and economic conditions in Europe. Springer is a brother of Eugene Springer of Roseburg. He will leave Friday and return in July to France.

Newland gave an interesting and informative discussion, interspersed with humor, on his trip, relating how he lost his wallet on the train out of Portland.

Newland's trip took him and his family to Chicago, where they saw the Roseburg Jaycee convention delegates; to Detroit, Mich., where they bought a new car and visited the Ford factory; thence to Pittsburgh and through Gettysburg to Washington.

They visited the Congressman Ellsworth in Washington and saw many sights of interest. They also saw M. M. "Red" Nelson, formerly of Roseburg and now with the forestry service in Washington. They went then to New York, before returning west.

Springer, speaking impromptu, told how the western nations of Europe are building up, thanks to the Marshall plan, which has aided their own natural recovery. He said the Communist problem is not now serious in those countries, but has a strong foothold in nations under Russian domination. He said he has visited all the nations of Europe, except to penetrate the "iron curtain" in his work, since going to France in 1946.

Menace Of Discarded Ice Box Will Be Remedied

WASHINGTON, July 6 — Last Friday three small children smothered to death in an abandoned ice box in nearby Fairfax county, Va.

To help prevent such a thing happening again, the Washington Post printed a list of agencies which would remove unused boxes to places where children couldn't get to them.

One big moving company, which offered to do the job free, reported last night that it had received 15 requests for removal of old ice boxes since Friday.
