

Chicago 'Floats' Gangster Cohen

CHICAGO—AP—Gambler Mickey Cohen presumably was on his way back to Los Angeles today, his homecoming visit to Chicago—cut short by police.

Cohen, 36, was in Chicago only five days but he said he would be glad to leave his home town. He expressed dissatisfaction at the brusque welcome by police who told him to "get out of Chicago—you're not wanted."

Police also called Cohen an "undesirable," and said "we don't want any gang murders here that we have no business with. We have enough trouble with our own murders. Take your business back to Los Angeles."

Cohen, who has been the target of gang guns and bombs in Los Angeles, was held by police for more than 12 hours. With him in custody was John Stompanato, 34, his traveling companion. Both were released yesterday after police were unable to find any charge to place against them. They were nabbed in a swank Gold coast hotel Thursday night.

The note left by Dirst to his wife, Jane, was read to a coroner's jury by Coroner W. Clark Davis. Dirst said he believed his family "would just as soon see me in the cemetery as the prison. It must be one or the other."
