

Resignation Threat Backs Police Force Demands

MOSCOW, Ida. — (AP) — Administrative and police officials were quiet today on what may come of their controversy over pay, working hours, and other allowances petitioned by the police department's nine major officers. Mass resignations of the officers Oct. 13 hangs in the balance. Much of a compromise offered by the city council — a ten percent pay raise, initial uniform allowance, a second police car and other adjustments — was termed acceptable by a police spokesman. On one demand, however, they remain firm. Police insist the administration create the position of a police captain. He would rank over two sergeants which the council agreed to create, and would be subordinate to the police chief. Police declined to comment on future actions. Mayor R. K. Bonnett and Allen S. Ramstedt, council member and chairman of the council's police committee, said they knew of "no new developments."

Dr. Sander's Aide Found Dead; Thought Suicide

HOOKSETT, N. H. — (AP) — County authorities expressed the belief that Helen Macinlek, 25, secretary of Dr. Hermann N. Sander, was a suicide. The body of the young woman, who was a key character witness for Dr. Sander in his world famous murder trial last March, was found Tuesday in a deeply wooded ravine near her Hooksett home—24 hours after she disappeared.

County Solicitor Raymond K. Perkins said the young woman's death had "all the earmarks of a suicide." He waited the outcome of an autopsy before forming a definite opinion.

Perkins said that a two-ounce jigger and an envelope were found near the body. The envelope, he said, could have contained powder or capsules. Matching jiggers were found in the Macinlek home. Dr. Sander, who figured in an overnight search for the girl, described her as "a wonderful secretary." He said he hadn't seen her for about three weeks as she was on vacation until Oct. 1. "Others told me," he said, "that she appeared emotionally upset in the past few days."

Weyerhaeusers To Boost Output Of Pulp Plants

LONGVIEW, Wash. — (AP) — Plans for increasing the capacity of the Weyerhaeuser Timber company pulp plants here were announced by R. E. Baker, Longview pulp division manager for the company. Installation of additional equipment to boost total daily output of the kraft process mill to nearly double its present capacity was announced. Installation of the equipment will begin next summer and should be completed during 1952. Baker said the eventual capacity of the bleached pulp plant will be about 400 tons, compared to the present kraft output of 220 tons daily.

He estimated that the new installations will require about 70 to 75 more men to be employed in the operations. Arrangements also are being made so the mill may produce either pulp or kraft board. The company now produces approximately 500 tons of kraft and sulphite pulp daily in the Longview operations and also produces paper board at Springfield, Ore., and bleached sulphite pulp at Everett.

New Terminal To Rise For Pierce Freight Line

Ground was broken recently by Archie Pierce president of Pierce Freight Lines, Inc., for his company's new terminal and office building on a four-acre tract near the center of the wholesale and industrial district in Portland. Pierce said as a result of continued growth and development new terminal facilities have become necessary in the Portland area. The project will represent an investment of $275,000. Pierce has completed modern terminal buildings in Eugene, Roseburg and Albany and has plans for new facilities at other major stations. The new Portland terminal is expected to be ready for occupancy by March 1, 1951.

Acheson Offers World-Wide Plan To Bar Aggression

NEW YORK — (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson laid before the U.N. assembly Tuesday an American program to combat aggression anywhere in the world, including a provision for a peace patrol and military forces to back up United Nations decisions.

He also suggested that the assembly organize itself so it can meet "upon 24 hours notice" to act on any breach of the peace on which the veto-bound Security Council cannot act. This would apply to any subsequent case similar to the present Korean war.

Giving a major outline of United States policy in the U.N., Acheson said a world organization with teeth to back up its decisions might deter the realists in the Kremlin from seeking the piece-meal dismemberment of the non-Soviet world.

"If this does not occur the increase in our defensive strength shall be the means of ensuring our survival and protecting the essential values of our societies," he declared.

Acheson proposed that the Formosa question should be placed on the assembly agenda as a matter of special and urgent importance. Formosa now is the last stronghold of the Chinese Nationalists. Its waters now are being patrolled by American naval units on orders of President Truman to prevent the spread of the Korean conflict throughout the Orient. The secretary of state said the United States government believes the "problem of Formosa and the nearly 8,000,000 people who inhabit it should not be settled by force."
