Coyote Snatches Lunch From Schoolboy's Hand

FORT WORTH, Tex. — (AP)—The wolf in folk lore was more interested in Red Riding Hood than the goodie she carried, but a coyote here was more interested in Charley Harrell's lunch than the boy.

"I was carrying my lunch in a sack and it stole the sack right out of my hand," the 12-year-old said here. The fifth grader took out after the coyote. It turned and jumped at his neck, but he knocked it down. James Cole, 25, came up and drove off the animal. He was bitten on the hand.

A Negro, Charley Hurd, set out in his automobile to hunt the coyote. He shot it nine times with a .45 caliber pistol.
