

$2,000 In Old Bonds May Cost State $250,000

RICHMOND, VA. (AP)—Mrs. Bonny Walker, 76, of Vinton may have the commonwealth of Virginia over a financial barrel. She has found in her attic two $1,000 bonds issued by the state some 85 years ago.

The date is not here. It could be 1861 or 1864. The important question is what.

If it was 1864, the bonds are worthless. The fourteenth amendment to the U.S. Constitution forbids states from making good any obligations to finance the Civil war. If the date is 1861, before Virginia seceded from the union.

State Treasurer Jesse W. Dillon says there are no records of the bonds. Many records were destroyed after the Civil war. But the state is still searching. The commonwealth has a reputation of always paying its debts, and Dillon says:

"If the commonwealth of Virginia over her some money, the commonwealth of Virginia will pay her."

Mrs. Walker thinks the state will pay and pay. At six percent compound interest she figures the bonds are worth $250,000.

Look at the handsome honey pictured here—or recall the thousands like it that you've been seeing on the highways—and ask yourself what you think one would cost.

Bear in mind, this is an eight—and a very special eight—with the eager and ever-lively power of a high-compression valve-in-head engine that's a Fireball to boot.

Take stock of its generous expanses of safety plate glass that mean extra visibility—and the sofa-wide comfort of its deep-cushioned seats.

Take our word for it—or check for yourself—it rides like a dream—with coil springs on all four wheels instead of two—with big soft low-pressure tires on Buick's wide rims—and with feather-light handling for all its road-hugging heft.

Remember that such things as air cleaners, oil filters, dual horns, windshield wipers, sun visors and map lights, automatic dome lighting, and a built-in ventilation system all come as part and parcel of every Buick at no extra cost—and likewise that Buick, and Buick alone, offers Dynaflo Drive.*

Then look at the prices and see how they jibe with your idea of what such a car should cost. If you've done any shopping, you'll quickly find out that you can own a Buick at prices that start below what you'd pay for some sixes.
