VERBOORT, ORE. -(P) – The woman who started serving the now famous Verboort sausage and sauerkraut dinners has passed along the recipe. But Mrs. Mar-garet Van Dyke admits it is not the same sausage the women of the Visitation parish first cooked to a delicious brown. The recipe: one third fresh lean deef, one third lean pork and one third fat pork with half a pound of salt and two rounded tablespoons of black pepper to each 25 pounds. This is ground, mixed and then stuffed in hod gasings—and smoked two to four hours in allpe, willow or oak wood smoke. Ban On Price Fixing Pacts Among Plywood Companies Issued By U.S. Trade Board

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The Federal Trade commission has issued two orders prohibiting price fixing agreements among pro-ducers and distributors of Douglas fir plywood products and Douglas fir doors.

les fir doors. The order on plywood products was directed against the Douglas Fir Plywood association, the Douglas fir plywood in-formation bureau, 15 corporations, and Wallace E. Difford of Seattle, former managing director of the association. The commission held that the corporations, with the coop-peration of the association and the information bureau, conspired over a six-year period, 1935-1941, to restrain and suppress com-petition by agreeing to fix and maintain the prices, terms and discounts.

discounts. The order on doors names the Fir Door institute of Tocama, Wash., eight corporations and Dif-ford, former manager of the Door institute as well as heads of the Plywood association. The commission heid that the respondents censpired to fix prices, terms and discounts on Douglas fir doors and, by agree-ment, quoted prices on a delivered basis only, the quotations includ-ing freight charges computed from Tocama regardless of the origin of shipment or the actual freight rates. The price fing agreement extended over a period of about four years from January 1938 to November 1941, the commission said. said.

Under the licensing arrange-ments, the commission said, the firms cited agreed to sell only the Crawfirdor overhead garag e door and purchase all their Craw-firdor hardware from the Crawford company.

In addition, the commission said, the respondents agreed to fix and maintain the sale and resale price of Crawfirdors, with the Crawford company receiving a royalty for reach door sold and paying a royalty to the institute for each set of Crawfirdor hardware sold.
