

The News-Review

Published Daily Except Sunday by the News-Review Company, Inc.
 Entered as second class matter May 7, 1920, at the post office at Roseburg, Oregon, under act of March 3, 1911.
CHARLES V. STANTON Editor
EDWIN L. KNAPP Manager
 Member of the Associated Press, Oregon Newspaper Publishers Association, the Audit Bureau of Circulations
 Represented by WEST-HOLIDAY CO., INC., offices in New York, Chicago, Roseburg, Oregon, Under act of March 3, 1911.
 San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Portland, St. Louis.
 SUBSCRIPTION RATES—In Oregon—By Mail—Per Year, $10.00; six months, $5.50; three months, $3.25. By News-Review Carrier—Per Year, $12.00 (in advance), less than one year, per month, $1.00. Outside Oregon—By Mail—Per Year, $12.00; six months, $7.00; three months, $4.00.

THE EASTER MESSAGE

St. Matt. 28: 1-7

In the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene and the other Mary to see the sepulchre.

And, behold, there was a great earthquake; for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

His countenance was like lightning, and his raiment white as snow:

And for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as dead men.

And the angel answered and said unto the women, "Fear not ye: for I know that ye seek Jesus which was crucified."

"He is not here: for he is risen, as he said. Come, see the place where the Lord lay."

"And go quickly, and tell his disciples that he is risen from the dead; and, behold, he goeth before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him: Lo, I have told you."

St. Mark 16: 1-8

And when the Sabbath was past, Mary Magdalene, and Mary, the mother of James, and Salome, had bought sweet spices, that they might come and anoint him.

And very early in the morning the first day of the week, they came into the sepulchre at the rising of the sun.

And they said among themselves, "Who shall roll us away the stone from the door of the sepulchre?"

And when they looked, they saw that the stone was rolled away: for it was very great.

And entering into the sepulchre, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, clothed in a long white garment; and they were affrighted.

And they said unto them, "Be not affrighted: Ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified; he is risen; he is not here; behold the place where they laid him."

"But go your way, tell his disciples and Peter that he goeth before you into Galilee: There shall ye see him as he said unto you."

St. Luke 24: 1-9

Now upon the first day of the week, very early in the morning, they came unto the sepulchre, bringing the spices which they had prepared, and certain others with them.

And they found the stone rolled away from the sepulchre.

And they entered in, and found not the body of the Lord Jesus.

And it came to pass, as they were much perplexed there about, behold, two men stood by them in shining garments.

And as they were afraid, and bowed down their faces to the earth, they said unto them, "Why seek ye the living among the dead?"

"He is not here, but is risen: remember how he spake unto you when he was yet in Galilee."

"Saying, 'The Son of Man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and the third day rise again.'"

And they remembered his words.

And returned from the sepulchre, and told all these things unto the eleven, and to all the rest.

St. John 20: 11-18

But Mary stood without at the sepulchre weeping: and as she wept, she stooped down and looked into the sepulchre.

And seeth two angels in white sitting, the one at the head, and the other at the feet, where the body of Jesus had lain.

And they say unto her, "Woman, why weepest thou?" She saith unto them, "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him."

And when she had thus said, she turned herself back, and saw Jesus standing, and knew not that it was Jesus.

Jesus saith unto her, "Woman, why weepest thou? Whom seekest thou?" She, supposing him to be the gardener, saith unto him, "Sir, if thou have born him hence, tell me where thou hast laid him, and I will take him away."

Jesus saith unto her, "Mary." She turned herself, and saith unto him, "Rabboni," which is to say, Master.

Jesus saith unto her, "Touch me not; for I am not yet ascended to my Father: but go to my brethren, and say unto them, I ascend unto my Father and your Father; and to my God, and your God."

Mary Magdalene came and told the disciples that she had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken these things unto her.

Editorial Comment

From The Oregon Press

EX-ROSEBURG EDITOR GETS MEDAL FOR WILDLIFE JOB

(Oregon Journal)

Carl D. Shoemaker, conservation director of the National Wildlife Federation, has received the Leopold memorial medal for his efforts in wildlife conservation.

The medal was given him at the North American Wildlife conference at Milwaukee.

Oregon will feel considerable pride in the award since it was in this state that Shoemaker began his outstanding career.

He was named by Governor Withycombe to the state game commission because as editor of the Roseburg Evening News Shoemaker criticized the governor when he discovered the members of the commission were poorly distributed geographically.

Never since has a Shoemaker been out of the wildlife conservation field. He has worked in the national capital, employed by both private and congressional groups.

Oregon has furnished another nationally known figure in wildlife conservation. He is Dr. Ira N. Gabrielson, former director of the U. S. fish and wildlife service and now managing director of the Wildlife Institute of Washington, D. C.

Oregon has thus exported two men who could be mighty helpful right now in solving the problems that have arisen over proper use of the state's natural resources of beauty and fish and game.

Years ago a clever newspaper paragrapher said of a certain politician in the public eye: "He mistakes conversation for conservation."

Oregon is full of his kind.

Gas Pipeline From Texas To Northwest Projected

(The Oregonian)

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The pipe commission has under study a proposed 2,175-mile natural gas pipeline from Texas to Oregon and Washington.

Pacific Northwest Gas Pipeline corporation, of which Robert R. Herring, Houston, Tex., is president, applied on June 29, 1950, for a permit to build the line.

Total cost, including 400 miles of 22-inch and smaller lateral lines for gathering and distribution, was estimated at $172,374,000.

'Round and 'Round

In The Day's News

By FRANK JENKINS

(Continued from page One)

of perjury floating around loose in this country.

Solier question: How can you have JUSTICE when perjury is as prevalent as it seems to have been lately? Justice rests upon establishment of FACTS. How can you establish facts when witnesses lie under oath?

Getting back to O'Dwyer: He was suddenly bowed upstairs—from mayor of New York City to United States ambassador to Mexico.

Why? Well, I'd guess it was done to hush up the nasty mess that already was cooking in New York.

Wouldn't you?

Do you remember Hercules, the strong man of Greek and Roman mythology?

By way of proving him out, he was given twelve labors to perform. One of these labors was to clean the Augean stables, where 3,000 oxen had been kept for many years without anybody ever grabbing a pitchfork or a shovel to clean out after them.

He got away with the job in one day by diverting a couple of rivers through the stables and letting the waters wash them pure again.

Wouldn't it be wonderful if we could divert the Potomac through the city of Washington and in one day have our capital city washed clean and pure again? Or if we could dam up the great Hudson and send its waters rolling down through the city of New York to cleanse away the corruption we've been reading about there?

The trouble is that the tasks are different.

The stables of Augeus were corrupted merely by physical filth. The waters of a river can wash away physical filth. There is strong and growing evidence that our country, at this moment of graver national peril than we have ever faced before, is being corrupted by MORAL FILTH.

It takes more than the waters of a river to wash away moral filth.

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

The mother struggling with the everlasting washing, ironing, mending, cooking... who sees it as service in his name, finds it easier going. The man laboring over tiresome routine of business, or driving the same monotonous route... is also able to serve in His name.

Such ideas as these have been going through my mind as I have thought more than usual about Easter. If we find ourselves in a "tomb of despair—grief, frustration, helpless inactivity—let us think beyond the cross, and reach out confidently for the blessing. It's there!

Perhaps we need to be more intent upon the simple exercises given us by the Teacher. Maybe we need to practice more the little things, the loving of our neighbor regardless of the neighbor's parent attitude. ("If ye love them that love you...") the exercises in self-discipline instead of efforts at reforming the world, the realization of the importance of our part, however simple, in the divine orchestral arrangement? We shall have more patience, more happiness, more sense of accomplishment.

Use Charted Of Highway

Log Volume Estimated On Oregon State Roads

OREGON STATE COLLEGE — The volume of logs that will move over Oregon highways in the next 10 years is estimated in an Oregon State college school of forestry survey that is expected to be useful to both logging operators and highway engineers in road planning and present and future highway maintenance problems.

The survey, made at the request of the Oregon natural resources road committee of the Pacific Logging congress, estimates the amount of timber to be cut in all areas of the state and the routes it will take to market. Harry L. Nettleton, associate professor of forest management at OSC, spent a month in compiling data of all sections of the state.

Eugene-Springfield Heaviest Associated with Nettleton in the project were Dean Paul M. Dunn, William A. Davies, professor of logging engineering, and Robert Payette, senior in forestry at OSC.

The Eugene-Springfield section of U. S. highway 99 will have the heaviest use by logging trucks, the survey shows. It will carry 347 million feet, or 70,000 truck-loads, of logs a year. The Springfield-Thurston route on the McKenzie highway, the Tillamook-Bay City and the Bay City-Garibaldi sections on the coast highway are scheduled for from 200 to 300 million feet a year.

Other areas expected to carry over 100 million feet a year include Tillamook-Glenwood, Seaside-Astoria, Langlois-Coquille, Coquille-Coos Bay, Thurston-Nimrod, and Cascade-Albany. A total of 175 miles of highways, it is estimated, will carry from one to 10 million feet a year, or a maximum of 10 loads a day for a 200-day working year, and another 1500 miles will carry from 11 to 100 million feet.

Logging Dependent on Trucks Robert F. Dwyer, Portland, chairman of the logging congress committee, pointed out that the logging industry is nearly 100 percent dependent on trucks for transporting logs. Trucks must make possible logging of isolated tracts that 30 years ago were considered as impossible to reach, he said. Marginal timber previously left as waste is now being harvested, he said, adding that as much as 25 percent greater utilization of timberlands is possible where trucks can operate economically over good roads.

Grandchild's Poisoner Dies in Electric Chair JACKSON, Miss. — (AP) — A former dairy herdsman, convicted of poisoning his granddaughter for her insurance, died in the state's portable electric chair Thursday.

Houston Roberts protested his innocence. He was convicted of poisoning his granddaughter with medicine given five-year-old Mary Lou Hill. The state contended Roberts wanted to collect the child's insurance to finance a love affair.

The 44-year-old slayer remained in a strait-jacket until a few minutes before the execution. He had tried to end his life Saturday by slashing his wrists.

Partly Blind Man To Give Cornea To Blind Friend NEW YORK — (AP) — A partly blind ex-prizefighter will give the cornea of his sightless eye in the hope that it may restore the vision of a totally blind veteran.

The two met at Marine hospital on State island where they occupy adjoining beds. After comparing notes, Eric Josephs, British boxer, suggested the transfer of the still intact cornea of his right eye to the left eye of his new friend, Philip Pron, 24, of Jersey City, N. J.

Water Purifier Works LOS ANGELES — (AP) — An answer to one of the great hazards of a major disaster — contamination of a city's water supply — may be a portable purifying unit invented by a California Institute of Technology professor.

Dr. Alexander Goetz, 12-pound "sanitizer" has been tested by county health officials and proven capable of turning murky water from the Los Angeles river into a clear, drinkable liquid.

The unit sucks up water like a small pump and filters it through powdered earth that renders dangerous bacteria harmless. Dr. Goetz says. He estimates it can be produced for $500 to $50 a unit and can purify 30 quarts of water an hour at a cost of only a few cents per gallon.

The first Postmaster General under the Continental Congress was Benjamin Franklin.

Officer Suspended For Not Shooting Fugitive SPOKANE — (AP) — A deputy U. S. marshal, who said he "could have killed" an escaping young prisoner but didn't pull the trigger because the offense was so minor, has been suspended for 30 days.

Deputy Charles Carlisle will be off the payroll until April 22 unless the attorney general decides otherwise. Marshal Wayne Bezona said regulations call for the suspension when an officer loses his prisoner.

The prisoner, Marvin Glass, 24, ran away from Carlisle as he was being led from the Newport jail to the courthouse, a distance of 125 feet. He gave himself up a few hours later. He had been jailed on a charge of illegal possession of a sawed-off shotgun and was being taken to the courthouse for a hearing.

"I fired two shots in the air but he kept running," Carlisle said. "He stumbled and fell and I could have killed him. He wasn't more than 50 feet away. But I hated to kill a guy for a little charge like that. I thought it would be worse to kill him than let him get away."

Glass hid out in an alley shed a few blocks from the courthouse. He surrendered as a marshal's search party combed the area.

Threat Of Decreasing Food Supply Faces United States

By OVID A. MARTIN

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The threat of a smaller future supply of meat, dairy and poultry products hangs over the nation.

An Agriculture department report Monday showed that farmers plan to plant considerably less land to livestock feed crops than is needed to maintain current butcher-shop supplies of livestock food products.

Unless these plans are changed, feeders will have to cut down on production of beef, cattle, dairy men on milk production, livestock men on hogs fattened and poultrymen on the number of eggs and chickens produced.

The department said fears of farm labor shortages at harvest time and a reluctance to plow up land which has been returned to grass was evidently keeping farmers from expanding crop production as much as Secretary of Agriculture Brannan says