L. & C. College Choir Will Sing Here Tonight

The "Singing Pioneers" of Lewis and Clark college will give a public concert tonight at 8 o'clock in the Junior high school auditorium, under the auspices of the First Presbyterian church.

A free-will silver offering will be taken to help defray expenses of the trip.

Roseburg is the fourth stop on the third annual tour of the choir under the direction of L. Stanley Glarum.

Scheduled for the evening is a varied program of sacred selections, Negro spirituals and folk songs, including several arrangements by Glarum, who is widely recognized as a composer and arranger.

Accompanying the group on its second road trip through southern Oregon will be President Morgan S. Odell and Dr. John Stark Evans, director of the college music department. After the concert, a dinner is scheduled at the Presbyterian church for the choir. A and religious ties which mean so much to us. The international trade on which we are so dependent would be violently disrupted. Worst of all, we would be confronted by hostile power on the shores of the Atlantic, capable of using the great economic resources of our conquered friends to strike across the ocean at our own independence.

"We must not and will not let that happen. We in the western hemisphere must help the free men of Europe who are resisting Soviet expansion."

In the Far East, Mr. Truman said, Communist imperialism presents another threat to the American nations.

"If Soviet communism were to be successful in this venture," he said, "it would be a terrible blow to the bright promise of the principles of freedom and peace which we uphold."
