

Spring Chinook Run Increased; Steelhead Down

The state game department had good news today for Umpqua river anglers and conservationists. It is too early to voice an opinion, says Bill Pitney, resident fishery biologist, but the spring chinook salmon run to date is far ahead of the 1946 parent run. Through April 15, 1946, the counting station at Winchester had tallied 20 chinooks. The total run that year was 1974 fish. By April 15 this year, the return from the 1946 migration, 62 fish had been counted. The count so far this year is the highest for the same period since the count was started. For 1947, the April 15 count was 18 and the total run 2994. The tally in 1948 was 8 and 2245, for 1949, 29 and 2109, and for 1950, 10 and 2044. Although the starting date of migration, April 4, was normal this year, the count so far is more than twice that of the 1949 tally of 29 for the same date. If a large rain is made this year, biologists hold forth hope for recovery of the sadly depleted salmon run. It is possible, however, that weather and water conditions are responsible for the larger early count. Total run will be the determining factor.

Steelhead Run Lower

The winter steelhead run remains disappointing with only 3796 fish counted to date, the lowest on record, although the migration still is in progress. The winter steelhead run is considered to start November 1 of each year, ending May 31. Considerable overlapping between winter and summer run fish occurs in this arbitrary setting of dates, but as the fish cannot be distinguished as to season when they pass the counting station, the dates have been fixed as a guide. Biologists believe the count on each species will average out with reasonable accuracy over a period of years.

Arrests Of Thief Suspects Include Canyonville Man

PORTLAND — (AP) — Two men were in jail here and two others are being hunted in connection with a series of Oregon and California robberies which police said totaled $60,000 in loot. Capt. William Browne, chief of detectives, identified the two arrested as William Dale West, apprehended here, and Joe Monty Oyler, 28, taken into custody at Canyonville in southern Oregon. They are held under $10,000 bond. Harvey Richard Froembling, 21, and Allen Richardson Hecht, 18, are sought, Browne said. All four are charged with assault and robbery while armed. The FBI also holds warrants charging Froembling and Hecht with unlawful flight across a state line to avoid prosecution.

Browne said the four are accused in the $8000 armed holdup of the Portland Traction company office April 9, the $37,000 robbery of a Stockton, Calif., jewelry store and a $1500 Safeway store holdup in Stockton March 5.

When arrested, Oyler had in his possession loot valued at $17,000, including 223 rings, and other jewelry, Browne said.
