Millions Voted Higher Schools, Three-Point Tax Program Gets Approval

Program Gets Approval
SALEM - (#) -The 1951 Oregon legislature adjourned at 6:16 p.m. Thursday after a tedious 2:6-day session.
Both houses waded through heavy calendars, passing some important legislation in the last few hours.
A bill to permit sale of liquor to Indians was rushed through both houses. It was asked by the governor's council on Indian affairs, which requested that legislation which discriminates against Indians be wiped off the books.
The Senate completed legislative action on a bill to require licensing of auction houses and second hand stores. The purpose is to stop sale of stolen goods.
A bill to require school teachers on ign statements if they ever have been communists died in the House because of failure to get a two-hirds vote to put it on the calendar.

It includes $4,000,000 to complete the $6,000,000 teaching hospital for the University of Oregon medical school. The other items in the bill are: $730,000 for an addition to the home economics building at Ore-gon State college, $700,000 for an addition to the business adminis-tration building at the University of Oregon, and $2,000,000 for the board of control to spend on state institution buildings. Tax Program calls for referral to the people of a state property tax limit of 6 mills, which was passed by both houses. It also includes an interim com-mittee to study taxes, and the House completed legislative action on it today. The third item, calling for use of all $32,000,000 of income tax surpluses, was passed and sent to the Senate. This bill would limit any state property tax is nec-ensary to balance the budget. The Senate voted 20 to 10 to ze-cept the house amendment to the cigaret fair trade bill. This amend-ment provides that it shall become law only if and when the 3-cont cigaret tax becomes effective. That date would be October 1, unless the tax a stracked by referen-tom. House leaders rushed the amend-ment through when they heard re-ports that tohacco dealers planned the tax. The Douglas county court is opening bids May 1 for an aerial survey of 435.000 acres of timber lands, as an aid to assessment of property values, reports Robert Kleiner, head of the county's forest appraisal department. This is the second year that the county has engaged in this program. Last year 400,000 acres were surveyed from the air at a cost of 1.17 cents per acre, of an approximste total cost of $5,509.

In addition, private timber com- forest service lands, where private panies, for their own purposes and cuttings are intermingled in cer in a cooperative program with the tain areas, said Klager. in a cooperative program with the county, mapped another 200,000 acres. In 1949, private companies mapped an additional 75,000 acres from the air. With completion of the work this summer, approximately 80 per-cent of the county timbered areas, will have been mapped, said Klei-ner. There is some overlapping of
