Tour Of Poultry Housing Planned

Open-air wire poultry houses will be the subject of a tour to be held Saturday in the Roseburg area, according to Wayne Mosher, assistant county extension agent. The tour will start in front of the old Grange Supply building at 9:30 a. m. and will cover two general types of open air houses on farms of Sig Madsen, Garden Valley, and John Ferguson just north of Roseburg. Family type 15-bird pens and 10 x 20 foot group pens will be seen and discussed. The operators will answer questions concerning the wire houses and their reactions to them.

Considerable interest in open air housing has been shown in the county in the past two years. This year about 7,000 birds were housed in this type of shelter. Operators like the idea of no litter management with the wire floors and production has been better than was originally expected, Mosher said. Oregon State college is preparing a bulletin on the subject which points out the different types of open air houses and management features in their use.

Judge Appointed For New District

SALEM — (AP) — Jack S. Bohannon, 33-year-old Tillamook attorney, has been appointed by Governor McKay as circuit judge for the newly-created district of Clatsop, Columbia, Tillamook and Washington counties. The new district was created by the legislature by joining together the Clatsop-Columbia, and the Tillamook-Washington districts.

The two present judges for those districts — Howard K. Zimmerman, Astoria, and R. Frank Peters, Hillsboro, also will remain as judges for the new four-county district. Bohannon is one of the youngest judges ever appointed in Oregon. He was graduated from Willamette university law school in 1942, served in the Pacific in World War II, and has been practicing law in Tillamook since the end of the war. Bohannon now is a company commander in the national guard.

Governor McKay said he would have to wait until next week to name the two circuit judges which the legislature added for Multnomah county. One would handle regular circuit court cases, and the other would specialize in domestic relations problems.

Decision On Tax Law Aids State Of Washington

OLYMPIA — (AP) — Washington state's financially embarrassed general fund will receive an estimated three to four million dollars a year as a result of a state supreme court decision.

The high court ruled that the state may collect a business and occupation tax from out-of-state concerns doing business in the state if such business involves any action by a local office of the company. The business and occupation tax imposes a levy of 1/4 of one percent on gross sales.

In a decision involving an appeal by the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co., the court defined the type of sales by the company which could be taxed, and specified two types which were exempt from the law. Both exemptions were sales where the customer deals exclusively with the out-of-state parent organization and the local office does not enter into the transaction.

John Newland, attorney for the state tax commission, stated that the state will be able to pick up taxes back to Aug. 1, 1950. He estimated that collections under the new decision will bring in three to four million dollars a year. Newland added, however, that the case will undoubtedly go to the United States supreme court as both sides desire further consideration of the points against them. EX-EDUCATOR DIES
