VOA: Some time ago, Commentator Gabriel Heatter suggested that his listeners write him "freedom" letters for submission to the U. S. State department's "Voice of America" program for possible beaming overseas behind the Iron Curtain. One of Heatter's fans, Mrs. Lillian Rose, of Arbutle, Calif., wrote so poignant a message expressing the peace hopes of America that her letter was selected for the shortwave broadcast.

Mrs. Rose's letter was aired with felling effect, for she received an answer from a Dr. Ervin Zajtay of Budapest, Hungary. Although many letters have been aired on the VOA broadcasts, rare indeed are answers from behind the curtain. What's more, Mrs. Rose has received answers from Yugoslavia and from other European sectors.

This marks only the second time in the numerous Voice broadcasts that a listener has received a direct reply to her letter. Two months ago, a Rome, N. Y., woman heard directly from a listener in Poland.

Every U. S. citizen may contribute to Gabriel Heatter's freedom campaign by writing him care of the Mutual Broadcasting 45-year-old Grants Pass, Ore., dairy farmer who died after claiming he was beaten and robbed in a taxi cab.

Jensen was found dead in his Maxx hotel room last Thursday, three days after he told bellhop Emanuel Garcia that he was attacked in a cab.

However, a coroner's autopsy failed to find the cause of death. Further laboratory tests are underway. An inquest will follow.

northern valley to $14 in the southern valley. Alder is in limited demand at $17 a cord.

POLES AND PILING: Douglas fir poles, both peeled and "barkless," were in generally good demand. Barkless poles ranged from 9 cents to 30 cents per linear foot for poles from 20 to 75 feet long. Peeled poles brought from 12 cents to 36 cents a foot for lengths from 20 to 80 feet in the southern valley. Northern valley prices for peeled poles were 36 cents a linear foot for 55 foot poles and 40 cents for 60 to 70 foot poles, minimum top diameter 8 inches. Sales of piling were insufficient to report prices.

HARDWOOD LOGS: Alder, ash and maple brought $35 to $40 a thousand board feet in the central and southern valley. Demand was generally good, although outlets are few. Cottonwood ranged from $22 to $25 a thousand, with a very good seasonal demand for 54 inch split and peeled cordwood for excelsior at $14 a cord, delivered. One mill in the Eugene area brought chinquapin at $37.50 a thousand.

OTHER FOREST PRODUCTS: One mill in the southern valley was paying $27 a thousand for pine logs. There is a standing offer of $20 a ton for Douglas fir bark up to 1 1/2 inches thick at one tannery in the central valley. Cascara was reported at 10 cents a pound green and 25 cents dry, delivered to plants. Sword fern was 19 cents a bunch of 52 fronds.

Colombia's Chivor-Somondoco emerald mines were rediscovered in 1896 after being lost for about two centuries.

Lumber Prices' Decline Builds Buying Caution

CORVALLIS — (AP) — A little caution on price quoting was noted in the Willamette valley sawlog market last week, the Oregon State college extension service reported.

In the first of a planned series of weekly farm forest market reports, based on data from state farm foresters and other sources, the extension service pointed out that recent lumber price declines had resulted in unsettled conditions.

The report in detail:

DOUGLAS FIR: Willamette valley mills were paying from $35 to $44 a thousand board feet camp run for second growth saw logs. Offers were mostly around $40 with premiums paid for large logs and discounts for small logs. Eight foot logs down to 6 inch tops brought $15 to $18 a cord or $35 to $40 a thousand in the central and southern part of the valley. In some localities demand exceeded the supply. Old growth saw logs remained steady at prices ranging from $36 to $58 a thousand, depending on grade. Peeler logs were also steady at from $70 to $110 a thousand.

Prior to the drop in lumber prices, second growth stumpage prices were mostly $8 to $16 a thousand, depending on location, quality, volume, and other conditions. The decline in lumber prices has had little effect on stumpage, but loggers are being more careful on naming prices.

PULPWOOD: The pulpwood market was steady with demand generally very good. Delivered prices were $20 a cord for peeled spruce and $19 for peeled Douglas fir, noble fir, white fir, and hemlock down to 4 inch diameter in 4 foot lengths. Unpeeled, these woods down to 6 inch diameter in 8 foot lengths were quoted at $17 a cord. Hemlock and spruce logs brought from $35 to $44 a thousand in the central valley. Cottonwood ranged from $18 a cord in the
