BELATED PROGRAM

By CHARLES V. STANTON

A program designed to produce better game law en-forcement in Oregon is in the formative stage. Members of the Oregon Game commission and State Police department have held preliminary meetings to outline broad policies of cooperation. Details are being worked out between staff members of the two departments.

The surprising thing about this program is that it was not undertaken years ago. The action was so obviously indicated it is hard to understand why it has been neglected

The state's sportsmen and conservationists have been intensely dissatisfied with inadequacy of game law enforcement. Interim legislative committee studies two years ago developed the fact that complaints of unsatisfactory law enforcement constituted a statewide gripe. Yet few complaints were aimed at individual officers and men of the state police. It was generally agreed by sports men that the policemen were trying to do a good job, but were handicapped by lack of direction from top levels, where game law enforcement has been treated as an unwanted stepchild.

Because of this condition, sportsmen have been demanding transfer of game law enforcement from the state police to the game commission. A bill calling for such transfer was narrowly defeated in the last legislature.

Transfer Not Necessary

We disagree personally with many of our sportsmen friends that it is necessary to transfer authority to obtain satisfactory game law enforcement. We believe the de-sired ends can be achieved within the present state police structure. Before this can be done, however, it will be necessary to make a few changes. Most essential to an adequate game law enforcement program is a change in mental attitude by the top brass of the police depart-

Talking with high officers of the state police we have heard much criticism of the game commission. We have listened to fault-finding concerning personnel of the de-partment, management methods, rules and regulations passed by the commission, ridicule of policies, and criticism in general.

We realize that the game department has its faults. It doubtless can make improvement in administration. It perhaps has some misfit employes. But that condition is equally true of any other department.

The point is that we cannot expect an adequate game law enforcement policy while state police officers who direct that policy are actually antagonistic toward the game

New Program May Bring Changes

Apparently little effort has been made toward mutual understandings in the past. Certainly there has been little success in the matter of cooperation. It should have been an easy matter to have worked out a cooperative program

We now are informed that the two departments are doing the thing they so obviously should have undertaken in the beginning. They are sitting around tables trying to draw up formulas for cooperative effort and to work out the mechanics to better serve their respective policies. Our existing police organization cannot go all the way in game law enforcement. The State Police department is set up along military lines. It is designed to apprehend violators AFTER crimes have been committed. It is not designed to prevent crime by education or to work acheson should have been putting trade with Communists. in fields of conservation and preservation, except by holding up penalties imposed upon violators as a deterrent future violations. When justices of the peace fail in their cooperation, letting game law violators escape with token penalties, the state police enforcement system falls

This situation cannot be remedied in the new program of cooperation now under consideration. It will be possible, however, for both departments to work in closer harmony. It is proposed to bring about closer relations between game department employes and state policemen in field operations, provide speedler communication facil-ities, exchange policy and management information, and more fully utilize the capacity of the enforcement division.

It will not be hard to work out the mechanics of a cooperative policy. It will be harder to break down mental barriers - the existing antagonisms, suspicions and dis-

If both departments - and the game department is equally responsible for corrections - will wipe the state clean and start anew, with determination to do a real job, believe an adequate game law enforcement program takes a lot of water to run a big military camp. So the government is moving to take over the water of the Santa Margarita watershed—some 700-odd square miles—to meet its needs.

Here is the point that interests us up in Southern Oregon and Northern California:

If the government can TAKE the water of the Santa Margarita—without paying for it—it can take the waters of the Klamath, the Rogue and the Umpqua—without paying for them.

On what grounds does the federal government claim this water?

Well, it says that when the Western states were ar uired from France and Mexico, ALJ, WATER RIGHTS as well as land titles became vested in the United States government. It is asserted that the federal government never surrendered title. It merely permitted peuple in the states to take posession and eal with their respective states on a legal basis, but the old boy with the chin whisker retained a SOVEREIGN CLAIM, regardless of state laws, state allocation and distribution of water, and private rights.

This claim, in the case of the waters of the Santa Margarita basin, he is now assertine, and the waters of the Santa Margarita basin, he is now assertine, and the waters of the Santa Margarita basin, he is now assertine, and the waters of the santa Margarita basin, he is now assertine, and the waters of the santa Margarita basin, he is now assertine, and the waters of the santa Margarita basin, he is now assertine, and the waters of the santa Margarita basin, he is now assertine, and the waters of the santa Margarita basin, he is now assertine, and the waters of the santa Margarita basin, he is now assertine, and the waters of Shirley, James L. and Congress acted. Acheson was and Congress acted, Acheaon was right in the middle of another brave announcement that he did not intend to resign. He hasn't caught his breath yet

U. S. foreign policy is now geared completely into the volume and placement of American dollars. For years Congress let the President and Acheaon talk them out of nexiding lunds for Chinese resident and Acheson talk them out of providing funds for Chinese Nationalists fighting on our side. But Mr. Truman and Acheson have learned there is no use talking any more. In fact, the State department is putting out the word now that we've never had a better friend in we've never had a better friend in Asia than Chiang Kai-shek. A year or so ago Acheson was calling Chi-ang a thief and opining that we might as well face the fact that Asia was already a Communist colrights.

This claim, in the case of the waters of the Santa Margarita basin, he is now assering, and the owners of the water will have to defend their rights in the courts in an action brought by the attorney-general of the United States.

Truman into believing that he was only joshing about Chiang and the loyal Chinese. But Congress a n.d. the American people appear to hold other views.

An ordinary mortal would quit and go home. But Acheson goes on forever. The theory underlying the suit for seizure of the Santa Margarita's waters was thought up by a young squirt in the attorney-general's office. He has mentioned so far only the states of the West that were taken over from France (the Louisiana purchase) and from Mexico (by treaty following the Mexican war.)
