'Wetbacks' Stir Legal Controversy

EL CENTRO, Calif. — (AP) — Threats of legal action to prevent removal of Mexican contract workers swept the Imperial valley farmers association Saturday.
"We're not going to take this lying down," a spokesman said Secretary of Labor Tobin ordered the Mexicans off any farms where the AFL farm labor union is on strike.
The union says every farm in this rich agricultural area is affected by the order.
The U. S.-Mexico agreement under which Mexicans are allowed to work on American farms, specifies that they must be removed from any area in which a labor dispute arises. If jobs cannot be found for them elsewhere, they will be returned across the border.
Growers previously have said that loss of the contract workers would seriously hamper harvesting of the valley's $100,000,000 a year crops. The union has demanded that the Mexicans go because they are strike breakers.
About 5,000 contractees are now working in the valley. They make up about a third of the total force. The remainder includes 5,000 domestic workers and 4,000 "wetbacks," the union says.
The union also is trying to drive out the "wetbacks," Mexicans who sneaked into the U. S. across canals and streams, seeking jobs. Contract workers receive the prevailing wage of 60 cents an hour, and the union says the wetbacks strike leaders are demanding $1 an hour.

Defendant Wins Suit Over Alleged Contract Breach

A circuit court jury Tuesday released defendant Berl Swank from any liability by returning a verdict in his favor and against plaintiff, E. H. Fery, Fery was asking $1,315.76, allegedly remaining due on a contract sale for a logging truck and trailer.
The complaint stated the defendant agreed to buy the truck and trailer for $5,000 and also agreed to assume payments on a lien on the property. According to the complaint, an agreed balance of $1,315.76 was also to be paid to the plaintiff within two months of the sale.

Oregon Traffic Deaths Increase, Newbury Reports

Newbury said this is a 23 percent increase, while the national average increase is 10 percent.
Newbury appealed to law enforcement officers to be more strict in enforcing traffic laws.
He said 3,338 persons were convicted in May of these violations, and licenses were taken away from 109 drivers.

A Future is Hanging in the Balance, Too!

The 2-ton diesel heart of this "Caterpillar" D8 tractor ably symbolizes America's struggle against Communism as hard-working men and machines in logging camps and mills, on farms and in foundries, produce for the war for survival. This logging "Cat" is being reconditioned at the Interstate Tractor and Equipment Company's Roseburg Shop, 709 North Jackson, as part of that firm's machine and parts conservation program.
