Golden Anniversary Is Celebrated By Chapter

On Saturday evening July 14 Glendale chapter, No. 71, Order of the Eastern Star, celebrated its golden anniversary, at the high school gymnasium.

The program opened with an entrance march by the six courtesy girls and the officers, following the presentation of the national flag, carried by the associate patron, John Benakis, who was escorted by the marshal, Ida A. Edson, after which the chapter choir sang "God Bless America."

As a social solo, Jack Adams, minister of the Glendale church of Christ sang "The Lord's Prayer." The chapter had as its guests Alice Robinson, worthy grand matron; Leila Wimberly associate grand matron; and Etton Schroder, associate grand patron. Several past grand representatives, all of whom were escorted and introduced by the conductresses, Esther Kefer and E. Mae Basse, and welcomed by the worthy matron and worthy patron, Mary LaPeath and Philip E. Day Jr., were also present.

George R. Riddle, who acted as deputy grand patron at the time of the chapter's institution was also present.

The address of welcome was delivered by Ruth Selber, a past matron of the chapter, and the response was given by the worthy grand patron, followed by the choral group singing, "Memories."

Due to the summer vacation season, several of the girls belonging to Job's Daughters were away, so the organization was unable to present a drill. However, some of the girls were in attendance to present the chapter with a gift.

An address honoring the past matrons and patrons carried out the theme of progress throughout the years by presenting characters representing the past, present and future. About thirty past matrons and patrons were present and introduced.

The history of the chapter was prepared and read by Lulu Pratt Sheriff, the chapter's historian, with highlights of the past half-century being related.

The choir sang "My Task" with John Benakis as soloist and Mildred Sether playing the violin obligato after which Mr. Benakis sang as solo "In The Garden of Tomorrow."

An addenda by the past matrons honored the chapter, a gift was presented and before leaving the floor the group also paid tribute to Mattie Heller, who has served the chapter as its secretary for more than twenty years.

After greetings and speeches by the honored guests and members from visiting chapters, the program was closed by a song, "May The Good Lord Bless And Keep You," by the associated patron, followed by the officers retiring march and escort of guests to refreshments.

The gym was decorated with myriads of gold stars forming a false ceiling and bouquets of gold gladioli and fern were prominent throughout the building.

During the refreshment hour music was played and Terry Coleman presented a tapdance.
