For his part, Nam asked Joy five times during the day whether he had anything further to say. The first time he asked it somewhat hopefully, Nuckols said. Each time the admiral said no.

All evidence indicated that Nams' mission at the moment is to keep the conference going while he awaits instructions from higher authorities.

It was believed here that the Russian-traine d33-year-old Korean has received no instructions to change his demand for a buffer zone along the 38th parallel. Consequently his technique was helieved to be one of continuing the meeting until such instructions were received, if at all.

The Pyongyang radio gave no indications that the North Koreans would compromise. It said the U. N. demand for a cease-fire along present battle lines, most of which run through North Kores, was totally unacceptable.

However, the Pyongyang radio on two previous occasions has taken an uncompromising stand on controversial—but much less important—questions, on which the Red negotiators subsequently gave in.
