Boy Survives Contact With 11,000-Volt Wire

PORTLAND — (P) — An 8-year-old Oregon City boy fell against an 11,000-volt power line Thursday. He was burned and suffered shock, but there was no immediate indication of damage to his heart. The boy, Richard Oviatt, was visiting a cousin at 5013 N. E. Irving street and a playmate said he crawled up and attempted to retrieve toy automobiles tossed atop a capacitor box by older boys. He lost his balance as he started down and fell against the wire.
