Ace Flier Killed In Crash Enroute To Father's Rites

SEATTLE — (AP) — A Washington State ace hero of two wars, who came unscathed through 102 missions over Korea, met a flaming death Wednesday on a flight to his father's funeral.

He was Maj. Raymond Schillereff, 34, of Seattle. Members of his family were notified that he was flying the F-86 jet that collided with a B-26 bomber near Hill air force base, Utah. Two men aboard the bomber parachuted safely.

Schillereff gained fame in 1950 after he was identified as one of the first American airmen to shoot down a Russian-made plane in Korea. It was among six chucked up in the first two days of the Korean fighting.

Farm-To-Store Price Spread Hit In Senate Probe

WASHINGTON — (AP) — A senate report on food prices says that for most products there is too big a spread between the farmer's price and the grocery bill.

The report indicated that middlemen may be taking too big a cut. A five-man subcommittee, which investigated food prices, said a complete investigation should be made in Chicago to find out why consumer milk prices are "so high compared to what the farmers and dairymen get."

"I've heard rumors," he told a reporter, "that some milk route deliveries get as much as $15,000 to $16,000 a year." Aiken is a former dairy farmer.

Most of the price levels used in the subcommittee's report have been outdated by the sharp price boosts since the Korean war began.

But it noted that a 13 percent drop in farm prices in 1949 resulted in a reduction of only four percent in the retail price of food.

The report recommended that a justice department anti-trust investigators "conduct investigations of possible price agreements among bakers in those markets where interstate commerce is involved."

Aiken said milk producers serving Chicago got $2.12 less for a hundred pounds of milk than those serving Washington. "A n d yet Chicago prices to consumers for a quart of home delivered milk is a cent higher than Washington," Aiken added.

Hunger Strike Starts To Regain U.S. Citizenship

BREMEN, Germany — (AP) — Crusading German - born Teut Becker continued his hunger strike today in an effort to get back the U. S. citizenship he gave up three years ago.

The 37-year-old Becker, who gives his hometown as Bend, Ore., has been wandering around northern Germany ever since he gave up his American citizenship. His peculiar crusade includes wearing a donkey's ears and tail, which he said symbolizes "the spirit of the people."

He gave up his citizenship, he said, because in his one - man campaign he "intended to do things that might have embarrassed the American government if I had done them as a citizen."

The crusade is to prove that "activities pursued for gain contribute to conflicts that lead to war." The donkey is the symbol of the people's spirit because it "says for everything," and on its back "all tyrants ride but in the long and slow course of time, nevertheless, conquers and survives every idol."

Becker, who said he got the idea of preaching while working in Eugene, Ore., wants to go back to America now. He started his hunger strike two weeks ago in an effort to realize his desire. He said he wanted to go back to America, die of hunger or go to jail.

Becker says he slipped into Germany in 1948 after working his way from the U. S. on a Danish freighter to Marseilles.

Air Units Quit War Games Plan As Spat Result

NEW YORK — (AP) — The New York Times says that navy marine air units have withdrawn from the big war games at Fort Bragg, N. C., because of differences with the air force over the system of air control to be used.

The story, by Hanson W. Baldwin, the Times military expert, says the cancellation represents, "according to informed sources, an indirect by - product of far broader service differences about the control of aviation assigned to the front-line support of ground troops."

The "exercise southern pine" maneuvers, termed the latest joint training exercise in this country since the end of World War II, is scheduled for the Fort Bragg-Camp Mackall area from Aug. 13 to 28.

Taking part will be three army divisions and other ground troops totaling 85,000 men, 400 air force planes and 12,000 air force personnel.

But the Times says, navy and marine squadrons totaling more than 100-aircraft have been withdrawn.

In discussing "the differences between the services about air support," Baldwin writes: "Fundamental, however, is the air force belief—not shared by the other services—that close air support is the least effectively used most wasteful use of using air power."

"Higher priorities of the tactical air force were defined as the winning of air superiority and the severance far behind the enemy front of enemy supply lines," the article said.

In contrast, Baldwin says, the navy believes in close air support of fighting ground troops.

The differing concepts, Baldwin concludes, "must be settled at the joint chiefs of staff level, all services agree, and not in the field."

Arms Cuts Called Contrary To Need

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Senator Connally (D-Tex.) said today Congress can't provide for a buildup in the free nations' defense strength and cut military spending at the same time.

Connally's comment was made to a reporter in announcing that the senate foreign relations and armed services committees will go to work Monday on revising the $8,500,000,000 foreign aid authorization bill.

The house foreign affairs committee has sliced $651,000,000 from the total, Connally, however, said he believes any sizeable reductions made by the senate committee must come out of the economic aid.

Loggers Thrill Throng At Sutherlin Carnival

James W. Smith; and third prize of $5 to John McCreary, Sutherlin. A 1/2-inch preformed wire rope was used.

Donating prize money in the two power saw bucking events were McCulloch Chain Saw Sales and Service Co., Pacific Chain Saw Co., Inc., Western Equipment Co., all of Roseburg.

One of the highlights of the three-day festival was the grand parade staged late Saturday morning. Following the queen's coronation on a gigantic log donated by the Weyerhaeuser Sutherlin operation, 25 float entries rolled down Sutherlin's main drag in one of the biggest parades in the city's history.

After 10 minutes of deliberation, the judging committee of Mayor Claude Kesner, Mrs. I. Groeaur and Eric Cox returned a first prize certificate for the Business Women's club. With the slogan "Let's Boost Our Park," the float showed children playing on several recreational devices which would appear in the park. It was decorated by fine bougns and ordered rows of red paper flowers.

This prize winner was worth $75. Second prize of $50 went to the Rebekahs with a float depicting Rebekah at the well, surrounded by Hebrew women and surveyed by Queen Esther. Third prize of $25 went to Fair Oaks Grange.

With a slogan, "The Farmer Feeds the World," the float showed farmers of different countries holding white ribbons attached to a large world globe.

Special prizes of $25 went to the Mt. Scott Retail yards' float, fashioned by Rodney Hague, and the Lions' and Lady Lions' float. The Mt. Scott entry was a logging operation in miniature covering the whole bed of the truck. The Lions had a trailer showing a lush forest on one side and a charred, fire-furtted forest on the other labeled, "Keep Douglas County Green."

Following the official announcements of the float winners, the kids got attention in a pie eating contest. With the inducement of a $5 bill, Donald Jeffords of Sutherlin gulped his way to victory, downing the pie in a little less than five minutes.

Shakespearean Plays Offered By High Talent

By CORINNE WOODARD

Last of our pioneers, Will Shakespeare has come to Oregon to make his home. Saturday night's performance in Ashland of "King Lear," by the Oregon Shakespearean Festival players, drew attendance from all over the continental United States and Hawaii, demonstrating once again the popularity of the immortal Bard.

Perhaps Shakespeare's attraction for both actors and audiences can be credited to the simplicity of his portrayals, which appear only in broad outline through the action and dialogue, lending themselves to infinite variety of interpretation. In this respect, the festival players are praiseworthy artists, with the performances of Richard Graham as "King Lear" and William Oyer as "Edmund," outstanding. In the latter role, Oyer drew applause second only to Graham, although he was playing an unsympathetic character. Herb Greer's "Fool" was perhaps overplayed, as was that of John Brebner's "Poor Tom." Brebner, however, as "Edgar of Gloucester," performed with excellent reserve.

From Middlesex, England, Brebner has been at Sanford university on a scholarship this past year. Others of the troupe are drawn predominantly from the Pacific Northwest. One, John Buchanan, is from our neighboring town of Sutherlin.

As for the Freudian overtones, which are supposed to be found in "King Lear," we didn't find any such implications. Perhaps the psychology of love and trust betrayed is not well understood except by the layman and Shakespeare, who know how endless self-questioning can lead to emotional turmoil and nervous prostration. And physical exhaustion, and it is plain that even the young may be temporarily crazed by grief. Lear is indeed a pitiable being when, at his reunion with Cordelia, he dares not trust his recognition of her. No more poignant lines could be given an actor to speak than Lear's, "If you have poison for me, I will drink it."

Presented on an outdoor stage within the old Chautauqua shell in Ashland, these plays progress without pause for intermissions between acts. This allows uninterrupted action in rapid tempo, with a cumulative dramatic effect not possible otherwise.

Now in its eleventh season, the Oregon Shakespearean Festival is currently presenting "King Lear," "Twelfth Night," "Henry IV, part 2," and "Measure for Measure." The 1952 season will feature performances of "The Tempest," "Julius Caesar," "Henry V," and "Much Ado About Nothing."
