House Bill Opens U.S. To Japan-Born Orphan

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Little Mike, a Japanese-American orphan, may soon have a family and a home in the United States — thanks to Congress.

The House has passed a bill which would let three-year-old Mike become the foster son of U. S. army Sgt. Jack R. Terry and his wife, Carolyn, of Roanoke, Va.

Now it's up to the Senate and the President.

Mike was born in Japan, the son of an American occupation soldier and a Japanese girl and was placed in an orphanage in Japan.

The Terrys found Mike at the orphanage in 1949. They wrote Rep. Burton (D-Va) who sponsored a bill for Mike's adoption.
