mands the use of his ground artillery," Cole declared. He claimed that in Korea, navy and marine aircraft are now providing one-half of the air strikes. Air force figures for June, however, showed 21,000 sorties by the air force and 8,273 by the navy and marines. A sortie is one flight by one aircraft. Many army men are known to favor divisional command over close air support groups. But most air force officers oppose such a system on the ground it would hamper the mobility of the air force in meeting overall battle situations as they arise.

Dispute Becomes Serious "The situation has become critical," said Cole. "At all events this problem has reached such proportions, the world-wide dangers are so serious, the lives of our ground troops are so precious, that we can no longer permit the continuing wrangling and failure to grapple with this problem."

Cole's proposal followed a report in the New York Times that navy-marine air had canceled participation in joint training exercises in North Carolina this month because of differences about the system of air control to be employed. The navy said in a statement that it had been mutually agreed that navy-marine air groups would not participate because the marines would be busy training for Korea and the navy was shaping up its Atlantic fleet maneuvers.

ADMINISTRATOR VISITS -- Roscoe E. Bell, regional administrator, Bureau of Land Management, was a recent visitor in Roseburg. Pictured at right above with James Watts, district supervisor, Roseburg, Bell inspected the local O. & C. office, and checked field camps in the Rock creek area. He also met with the county O. & C. advisory board. Bell succeeded to the regional office at Portland following the resignation of Daniel L. Goldy. He came from Washington, D.C., but had previously served in the Pacific Northwest BLM district. (Staff picture)

Air Force Balk At Support Of Ground Unit Builds Issue For Congressional Action WASHINGTON -- (AP) -- Congress has been asked to settle what is described by a house member as a critical wrangle in the armed services over air support of ground troops.

Rep. Cole (R-NY) proposed that the house armed services committee study the problem as soon as possible. He told the House there can be no doubt that there exists very definite inter-service antagonism and basic disagreement on the important problem of the role of tactical air support.

In fact, he added, there is serious disagreement within the air force itself. Cole advocated the return of close air support operations to the army. He said that in taking this command from the army and giving it to the air force, Congress went too far in its armed forces unification program.

Indians Begin Recovery Suits For Land Losses

PORTLAND -- (AP) -- Pacific Northwest Indians have filed claims against the government for millions of dollars in payment for loss of land and other rights. They were filed in the final days of the five-year terms given by the government in which they could sue.

The regional Indian office here reported it did not have the complete list of claims made, but in recent days four groups asked for more than $90,000,000.

The deadline for filing with the Indian claims commission in Washington, D. C., was August 12. Among those getting in their claims in the final days were: Warm Springs Indians, $15,800,000; Umatilla tribes, $20,200,000; Chinooks, $30,000,000; Yakimas $19,000,000.

The claims are based on loss of land, water rights, fishing rights and other property taken when the whites moved in, and generally specify failure of the Senate to ratify a treaty.

Four Oregon coastal tribes jumped the gun and filed with the U. S. court of claims before Congress set up the special Indian claims court. They, in what is commonly called the Alsea case,

Production Of Wool Increases 3 Percent

PORTLAND -- (AP) -- Oregon's 1951 wool production is estimated at 5,506,000 pounds, a three percent increase over last year's.

The Agriculture department said this was the second year to show a production increase since the low of 5,207,000 pounds in 1949.

The 1950 crop was only 59 percent of the 10-year average from 1940 to 1949.

Mathew Kilroy, pitching for Baltimore in the American association in 1886, (then a major league) struck out 505 batters.

won a verdict of some $17,000,000. On appeal this was reduced to $2,500,000.

A big factor in the amounts sought is interest, generally from 1855, date of one of the important treaties.
