Army Is Harsh With Cadets

WEST POINT, N. Y. —(AP)—The army is holding firm to its stand that there will be no honorable discharges for cadets found guilty of violating the military academy's honor code.

There has been a strong movement, launched last week by head football Coach Earl (Red) Blaik, to allow the accused cadets to leave the academy without the stigma contained or implied in other forms of dismissal.

A restatement of the army's position came with an official announcement that final hearings should be completed early this week on the 90 cadets facing dismissal for cribbing on examinations.

"The action we are to take has been approved by the department of the army and the President himself," said Col. James B. Leer, the academy's public information officer. He added:

"There can be no deviation from the statement made last week by the superintendent, Maj. Gen. Frederick Irving."

Irving had said that cadets admitting guilt under oath would be given a chance to resign. Those refusing to resign, he said, would be discharged by administration order.

An army spokesman says that in either case, the cadets' departures would imply "neither honorable nor dishonorable conditions."

Coach Blaik, who lost practically all of his stellar football team in the scandal, appealed that the army lighten the cadets' punishment by granting honorable discharges.

Ranking army officers and at least one attorney for an accused cadet joined in the coach's plea.

Oregon State Fair Grounds Readied For Annual Show

The ring of hammers, the buzz of saws, and the slap-slap of paint brushes are heard all over the grounds as bustling workmen, under the direction of Leo G. Spitzbart, general manager, make ready for the 1951 Oregon State fair, opening in Salem this year on Saturday, Sept. 1.

He stressed the fact that every day, powerful jet sprays are kept going full-tilt, watering down vistas of cool green grass sheltered by leafy oaks, some of which are older than the 86-year exposition itself. Several large mowers, with men riding tractor-like in an articulated follow-up seat, keep the lawns short and smooth.

The Lone Oak track, acknowledged tops for plants of its size, is being readied under the watchful eye of Art Keene, grounds maintenance foreman. The turf is being rolled and packed to provide a fast yet cushioned footing for the high-calibre thoroughbred fleetsters expected for the 1951 meet.

Inside exhibit buildings, changes in space arrangements and the sprucing up of walkways goes on apace. The livestock buildings, all

Communist Girl Attempts Suicide After West Visit

BERLIN —(AP)—German Red Cross officials report that a young girl member of the Communist East German youth attempted suicide after she was denounced by informers for visiting free West Berlin.

They said the girl, frightened by fear of punishment fled from her camp in panic. She reached the western borders but, friendless and despairing of finding permanent refuge, slashed her wrists.

She was rushed to a Red Cross aid station in the American sector borough of Zehlendorf and given medical treatment and political asylum. Her name was withheld.

Communist police tightened controls over their masses of youth as the climax of the two-week festival neared—Sunday's mammoth "peace parade."

These controls extended even to the youngest categories—the "Pioneers," who range from six years to teen-age. One of these told relatives she was severely reprimanded for leaving her camp only to visit a friend in the Russian sector of the city, without even having attempted to reach the West.

Nevertheless, new tens of thousands of the Iron Curtain youths slipped across the sector border to visit West Berlin.
