In Campaign On Crime

as in the big ones, and named some names to back its point. The report rapped Governor Warren of Florida for "persistent refusal" to testify under oath in the committee's inquiry into the Florida underworld. The committee charged that Florida gambling "is controlled by interstate syndicates and unsavory associates of men in high office."

"Throughout the Florida testimony," the report added, "the name of Governor Warren cropped up frequently in questionable connections."

Unlike an earlier report, which aimed directly at O'Dwyer in biting language, this one referred to him impersonally in reciting testimony that mentioned names of gangsters as among the friends of the former mayor.

The time for the action is ripe, the committee declared, because "everywhere" an aroused American populace is "rising up to demand that police and prosecutors exert greater vigilance in tracking down and convicting the criminals who thrive under the protective umbrella of official corruption."

As weapons in the crusade against crime, the committee recommended:

1. A careful overhauling of state and local laws to make them more effective.
2. A high geared attack on the narcotics traffic, in which state and local officials would reform a team with the federal authorities who now carry the bulk of the load.

The committee called for creation of a special squad in the federal narcotics bureau to train local police in the specialized techniques of narcotics law enforcement.

The committee charged at one point that state and federal authorities are not making enough use of gangsters' income tax reports to get evidence for crack-downs.

The committee endorsed again legislation pending in Congress to require gangsters to keep specially detailed tax reports which would, in effect, confess their misdeeds—and inflict felony punishments on evaders.

Roseburg Truck Drivers Receive Safety Awards

Two Roseburg truck drivers, employees of the Pacific Motor Trucking Co., received coveted National Safety council safe driver awards at a company picnic at Blue Lake park, near Portland, Aug. 25.

They were T. W. Alspaugh, box 99, Melrose route, nine-year award, and L. F. Lee, 1701 Walnut street, three-year award.

These two drivers are part of 43 Oregonians who received awards for periods of safe driving up to and including 12 years. Other drivers receiving awards were from Portland, Salem, Eugene, Coos Bay, Newport, Albany, Klamath Falls and Medford.

Wrist watches were presented to John Snider, Portland, and Ernie J. Bradt, Salem, both of whom have 10-year safe driving records. Awards were presented by R. K. Latin, assistant general manager, San Francisco, who made a special trip for this occasion. Frank E. Landsburg, district director, bureau of motor carriers, Interstate Commerce commission, Portland, was the guest speaker at this event.

J. E. Skofstad, district manager, Portland, is in charge of company operations for the state of Oregon.

'Gemology' Topic Of Jack West's Talk At Rotary

The mining, cutting and polishing of diamonds were described to Roseburg Rotarians Thursday noon at the Hotel Umpqua by Jack West, local jeweler, in a luncheon talk.

"Gemology" is the study of stones used for adornment, said West, who listed five reasons why stones of adornment are valued: splendor of gems durability, rarity, fashion and portability.

Splendor is self-explanatory, while durability means that a certain degree of hardness is required; rarity meaning man's desire for the unusual; fashion, the desire to follow social trend; and portability, the ability to carry a small fortune in gems in a small packet.

West passed around several pictures illustrating the methods of diamond mining from the digging with air hammers, to the crusher, washer, grease process in which diamonds are attracted to grease. Then they are boiled, cleaned, graded, polished and cut.

The cutting process is a very delicate one, West noted. Diamonds have grain just as wood does. This is utilized to split the stone after a notch has been made where the division is to be made. The notch, incidentally, must be made with diamond dust, the only material hard enough to cut diamonds.

These facets are cut, after being marked off with India ink. Each finished product must have 58 facets so that when light goes into the gem, it refracts back out the top after hitting the bottom.

Dr. B. R. Shoemaker, a Kiwanian attending as a guest, proposed an annual joint picnic for all service clubs in the city. He suggested that committees be appointed from the clubs interested to study the matter. Rotarians favored the proposal in a preliminary show of hands.

The club bulletin, "Plainer Ends," was distributed during the meeting by Vic Lewis.

Teachers Attend Institute Held At Myrtle Creek

Teachers of the Myrtle Creek school system, gathered at the school Thursday for an institute. Theme of the session was "The Classroom Teacher and the Handicapped Child."

The institute was planned jointly by the office of County School Superintendent Kenneth Barneburg; Walter E. Snyder, director in charge of special education, State Department of Education, and M. C. Deller, superintendent of Myrtle Creek schools.

R. A. Jones, president of the Myrtle Creek chamber of commerce, welcomed the teachers at the 9 a. m. opening hour. This was followed by introductions by John Taylor, assistant director of special education, state department of education.

Barneburg talked on "Special Education on the County Level." This was followed by a talk on "The Role of the Health Service in Case Finding and Referral," by Dr. E. J. Wainwright, county health officer. Verna B. Hogg, school psychologist, State Department of Education, spoke on "The Handicapped Child vs. the Child With Handicaps," and Lloyd Thomas, consultant, education of speech and handicapped children, State Department of Education, spoke on "Preventing and Correcting Poor Speech in Children."

Following a noon luncheon served by the Myrtle Creek Parent-Teachers association in the homemaker room, the afternoon session continued with the following discussion topics:

- "Children with Vision Difficulties," John W. Jones, consultant, visually handicapped children;
- "Education for Crippled and Chronically Ill Children," Marjorie Friger, consultant, crippled and chronically ill children, and "Children with Hearing Difficulties," John E. Taylor, director of speech and hearing program, all of the State Department of Education, and "Myrtle Creek's Service for Handicapped Children," by John McDonald, who has been employed to take over the newly established special education department of the Myrtle Creek public schools.

The faculty of the schools was introduced by their respective principals.

vate negotiations or board of inquiry moves.

Brotherhoods in Dispute A Kennecott settlement likely would be followed rapidly by a break-up of the entire strike and settlements in the other major copper operations. These include Phelps-Dodge, Anaconda, and American Smelting and Refining companies.

AFL unions and several railroad brotherhoods also are in the controversy, and they have refused to cross picket lines of the Mine, Mill and Smelter workers. These other unions have similar demands pending but have not called a strike. In all, an estimated 100,000 copper, lead and zinc industry workers are idle. Nearly half the nation's tungsten production also was shut down as a result of the strike.
