

Care In Handling Crinoline Advised

Unless you have a set of rules handed down from your great-grandmother, you will need the following tips on how to manage a crinoline from Ciel Chapman, at whose door the fashion world lays the whole current crinoline craze. Mrs. Chapman advises: "This year the crinoline will be a part of the daytime as well as the evening silhouette whenever the skirt is full. It is a 'filler-outer', which needs an additional petticoat for comfort and elegance. Do not wear it next to your skin or let it touch your stockings as it is apt to be scratchy. "Always keep a crinoline hanging by its waist loops in an uncrowded part of your closet so its folds are uncrushed. Then it will seldom, if ever, need pressing.

Hair, Neckline Ratio Important

"Women today pay so much attention to the relationship between their hair and their hats. Why do they forget the even more important link between their hair and their necklines?" sighs Mollie Parnis, whose provocative necklines are famous.

"Every kind of collar from high to scandalously low, is in fashion today. Also every kind of hairdo, from shingle to chignon. The idea is simple — to paraphrase Kipling — just never let the twin meet. I dislike to see long strands of hair trailing untidily over high collars in the daytime when it is so simple to keep it neat in a bun or net. With low evening necklines, the head can look decorative and soft even when it is cut short by adding a veil or pretty head-dress," says Miss Parnis. The Trusteeship Council of the United Nations adopts its own rules of procedure.

CHATting OVER A CUP OF TEA, these lovely ladies present three striking half-size fashions from Lowell's. Mrs. Bunny Wilson, left, prefers a Betty Rose suit in wool gabardine of the seasons new blackberry shading which combines in excellent taste with pink accessories. Mrs. Edna Kealing selects a Peg Palmer two piece dress in a rust and black check, with black velvet trim on the pockets and neckline. Mrs. Delmar Roles feels at ease in her Peg Palmer crepe casual of coral rose, with her flattering neckline and the soft quilted detailing over each breast pocket. (pd. adv.)
