Cost Of New Wife Can't Be Charged To Old One

CHICAGO (AP) — The superior court ruled today that a divorced man can't charge up the cost of a new wife to his old one.

Dr. Willard R. Johnson, 46, a Peoria, Ill., dentist, applied to the court for a cut in alimony he is paying Mrs. Julia Johnson, 46, of Chicago, from whom he was divorced April 18.

Johnson told Judge George M. Fisher that he has $54 a week to live on after paying $100 a week alimony and $49 support money for his son, a student at Lawrence college, Appleton, Wis. Johnson has remarried since the divorce.

"He can't go out and acquire a luxury and charge it up to his former wife," Judge Fisher said in denying a cut in alimony payments.

Wayne E. Niebaum Spends 12-Day Leave At Home

Wayne E. Niebaum, 21, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Niebaum, route four, box 595, has completed naval recruit training and is home on a 12-day leave.

When he returns to San Diego, where he was stationed, he will be sent to diesel engine school.

Niebaum enlisted in the navy May 16, 1951. He attended Roseburg Senior high school three years.

State Department Hints At Vishinsky's Disfavor

WASHINGTON (AP) — The State department radio is telling listeners behind the Iron curtain that Soviet Foreign Minister Vishinsky laughed on the wrong side of his face when he derided the West's disarmament proposals in the United Nations.

The broadcasts suggested Vishinsky may be in Kremlin disfavor for his speech replying to the U.S.-led plan.

The Voice of America said the Kremlin apparently didn't get the joke since Moscow's Pravda and Czechoslovakia's Rude Pravo — both top drawer "policy" papers — left out of their accounts of Vishinsky's recent U. N. address his remarks that the plan had kept him awake nights — laughing.

Ten Million Trees Will Be Felled For Christmas

By CHARLES LYONS
A. P. Newsfeatures Writer

This year more than 10 million Christmas trees will be used in the United States. Planning for most of them was begun about a decade ago by the Christmas-tree farmer.

In early days wild stock was used exclusively for Christmas trees. With the growing interest in conservation in the early years of the 20th century, hand-planted trees appeared. Since then the trend has been toward the domestic rather than the wild tree.

Any land that is well drained and free from large woody vegetation will probably grow Christmas trees. The annual income per acre from a Christmas tree plot may well compare favorably with that from a more intensive crop.

Hazards Face Grower

A Christmas-tree farmer has to have a good deal of know-how. He has to be alert to possible hazards from livestock, fire, insects and disease, rodents, adverse weather, thieves and the competition of "volunteer" hardwoods growing up in the Christmas tree plantation.

Some farmers plant an equal area each year until the first harvest, say in 10 years. After harvesting, each area is replanted the following spring thus a rotation is established and the supply is constant.

Four Groups Commonly Used

Four groups of conifers are in common use as Christmas trees: pine, spruce, fir and hemlock.

Pines hold their needles well and are rapid growers, compared to spruce or fir. However, they usually present a too open, scraggly appearance. The spruces are popular because of their compact bushy growth and conical shape.

One of the most beautiful trees produced in the U. S. is the black spruce from swamp bogs of Minnesota.

Douglas firs and balsam firs develop into satisfactory trees without pruning. Spruces require pruning after the first five years. Hemlocks are the least satisfactory because of the tendency to needle loss when brought indoors.

Presbyterians To Observe Annual Harvest Potluck

Harvest home potluck dinner, an annual affair, will be held at the Presbyterian church Monday at 6:30 p.m., announces Dr. Morris Roach, pastor.

Speaker will be Dr. G. Henry Green, Portland, executive for the synod of Oregon. Nov. 19 is the centennial date for the Presbyterian church in the West. Dr. Green will speak on the history of the Presbyterian church in Oregon.

Added to the program will be a musical number, "Oregon, Sweet Oregon," by Henry de Moss, sung by Mrs. W. W. Woodward, with violin obligato by Mrs. Roach.

DATE CHANGED

Heinline Kiddies school will hold guest morning Tuesday instead of Monday as announced Friday.
