American Social Bonds Would Trouble Commies In Event Of Occupation

WASHINGTON—(AP)—It would be a little gruesome if the Communists took over here, judging from what's happened elsewhere.

Whenever they move in they have the immediate problem of trying to stay in. This seems to be a continuing problem since the Russian Communists, after being in 34 years, still need a secret police.

For the Communists, as their history shows, staying in means getting rid of members of the opposition, active or potential, or crushing it in several well-known ways: confiscating their property; forcing them into labor camps; or executions.

Traditionally the Communists look for their opposition in these two groups:

1. Those with material possessions who can't be expected to embrace the Communists for taking it away from them—the rich, property owners, businessmen, and farmers whose land will be collectivized.

2. Those who disagree with the Communists on ideological grounds, a large group including religious leaders, teachers and intellectuals.

Suppressions and liquidations in Russia are familiar. There have been some recent examples. Reports from China, reliable or not, tell of more than 1,000,000 people executed in massive purges.

From Hungary come stories of more than 50,000 of the middle-class taken from their homes in just a couple of months and thrown into labor camps with farmers and landowners.

South Koreans Killed
Besides telling of thousands of American soldier-prisoners slain by the Communists, the U. S. army in Korea last week reported South Korean civilians slaughtered in batches by the Communists.

But in this country, because of special conditions, the Communists would encounter a problem more complex than any they've found elsewhere. No doubt this would call for their greatest efforts.

In just sheer number of oppositionists we outdo any other country so far communized because we have more property owners, businessmen, religious leaders, teachers and intellectuals.

What makes this country unique is the number of tieups or links between the member of the groups through their organizations: fraternal, social, labor, business, professional, religious and political.

For instance, the Elks, Masons, Knights of Columbus, Kiwanis, Rotary, chambers of commerce on city and state and national levels—ditto the National Association of Manufacturers, labor unions with more than 50,000 locals, the professional societies, church groups beyond number, and the ward, precinct, district, city, state and national political organizations.

Come To Know
Through correspondence, meetings, conventions and pooling of common interests and efforts people in those groups have come to know and trust one another personally from coast to coast.

Unless well-crushed these organizations would provide, in many cases, the apparatus for an underground resistance which some

Maj. Gen. H. G. Maison Now Heads 41st Division

SALEM—(AP)—Maj. Gen. H. G. Maison, state police superintendent, has taken over as commanding general of the 41st division, consisting of the Oregon and Washington national guard units.

General Maison has been assistant division commander for the last four years. He becomes commanding general in accord with the agreement that the two states take turns having the division commander.

Maison succeeds Maj. Gen. Raymond Carrull of Washington. General Maison became a major general Monday, when he appeared before an army board in Washington, D. C.

Maison fought in World War II in the southwest Pacific with the 41st, ending the war as a colonel in a regular army division.
