DON'T FORGET THAT SPECIAL Christmas feature KRNR will bring you this next Sunday afternoon from the Junior high school. The Roseburg Choral society in its annual presentation of the MESSIAH. The broadcast will begin at 4:00 p.m. and continue to conclusion. This is the third successive year this group has given the MESSIAH, and we've heard from many different sources it will be well worth your time to relax and listen, that is if you can't make it down to the Junior high to hear it in person.

SPEAKING OF CHRISTMAS, we have heard, from a very reliable source, that Santa plans to spend the greater part of the day next Saturday in Roseburg. He will be walking up and down the streets of Roseburg in the morning, then to the George Lee Shoppe at 1:30 to pick up his mail and speak with Bob McClure over the Radio back out into the cold to walk around the streets again. This means every boy and girl able to get to town Saturday should be able to tell old Santa just what he or she would like to find under the tree Christmas morning. So many people want to see Santa this time of year it's taken us this long to arrange for Santa to spend the day with us. So plan to come down town sometime Saturday to see Santa. If you've been putting off writing that letter, be sure to bring it down with you and drop it in Santa's special mail-box at the George Lee Shoppe, or mail it to Santa, care of George Lee Shoppe, Roseburg.

SMOKY TIGER is the title of tonight's Clyde Beatty adventure, 5:30 to 5:55. On an animal trapping expedition in the jungles of Malaya, Clyde finds and captures a grey tiger cub. But before he can get the cub out of the jungles, it is stolen by one of his natives. Clyde's efforts to regain the valuable animal result in the dangerous adventure called "Smoky Tiger."

Tonight's Cisco Kid unravels an unusual mystery titled "Race for Life." One of the stories from the annals of the old west recounts the fact that, at times, cattle would roam and graze with the wild buffalo of the plains. This fact led an unscrupulous man to take a chance on beating the law. His plan, however, came to an abrupt end when he ran afoul of the "Cisco Kid."

Tonight, 7:30 to 8:00. Don't miss it.

Federal Rules Said Threatening Wool Industry

PORTLAND — (AP) — The country's wool growers were told here that federal regulations were threatening their industry and that they weren't even being consulted on some of the price regulations.

W. H. Steiwer, of Passl, Ore., president of the National Wool Growers' association, said in his prepared statement at the annual convention that the industry was "in a strait jacket of government control and government planning."

Wartime controls starting in 1941 and 1942, he said, all but wrecked the wool and lamb business by cutting down on production while building up a surplus wool stockpile with foreign imports.

After the end of the Office of Price Administration control both lamb and wool production began climbing, Steiwer told the convention delegates, but after three years in the Korean war outbreak again brought controls which he called unworkable.

Steiwer blamed soaring wool prices of some months ago on "un-called for announcements" by government officials that they were in the market "for a tremendous stockpile of wool." Then, he said, other government officials proposed subsidizing synthetic fiber plants in an effort to force down wool prices. There is still such talk, he said, although prices now are near pre-Korean levels.

Steiwer said new price regulations fix a maximum price for fat lambs but "I can find no evidence that any grower was ever consulted."

He added that as matters now stand, there are mounting operating costs and a possibility that the wool market will decline next year. If stock sheep are to be maintained and increased, thought should be given to tariff protection, Steiwer said. He added that such protection would enable the industry to rebuild after its wartime losses.

Snapshot Of Girl Friend Traps Boy In Money Theft

HARTFORD, Conn. — (AP) — A nine-year-old boy was nabbed by a girl friend when the policeman showed him a snapshot picked up near the scene of a parking lot burglary.

The policeman was looking for $32 and $30 worth of checks which disappeared from a cash drawer in the parking lot office.

The investigation had just started when a woman handed two detectives several checks and the snapshot of a little girl. She had found them in a gutter near the parking lot. The snapshot turned out to be a picture of the nine-year-old boy's girl friend.

The next clue came from an attendant at a nearby gas station. He had just "shooed off two kids who wanted to change a five-dollar bill," he said.

Shortly thereafter the detective found two boys, nine and 10 years old.

One of them flashed a plastic pogram at Sergeant Joseph Mcaney. "Don't get tough with me," piped the youngster. "I know my rights, I want to talk to a cop."

Maney said the boys, who had several dollars in change in their pockets, led him and his fellow officer to two money caches. One was in the parking lot itself, the other behind a nearby building.

Other money had been given to three friends of the pair. The parents of all five have been notified to present them in juvenile court. All the money has been recovered, except for $1.50.

That was what the plastic pogram cost.
