Life Chance Good For Infant With Heart Outside

TACOMA, Wash. (AP) — Six-day-old Deborah Angelo is given a good chance of becoming the first baby to survive an "outside heart" operation.

The surgeon, who performed the operation, gave that report. He said that in no other case has a child lived more than 11 hours.

Deborah was born Wednesday to Mrs. Elvon Angelo of nearby Puyallup. The surgeon said her heart at birth was "completely outside the chest." The arteries ran into the body below the ribs.

The doctor, who insisted on remaining anonymous, said the operation consisted of laying open the chest from the neck to the navel and then placing the heart under the breast bone.

He said the baby's chest was smaller than usual and could not accommodate the entire heart. At one point, he added, the heart is just about skin deep. However, the surgeon said that as the baby's chest grows larger it will move into its normal place and protective cartilage should form over it.

The doctor said that as he began to sew up the chest the child's heart began to slow down in its beating. He had to make an immediate incision and then stitch the chest up more loosely.

The father, a high school mathematics teacher, said he had great hopes for the baby's survival. But he added:

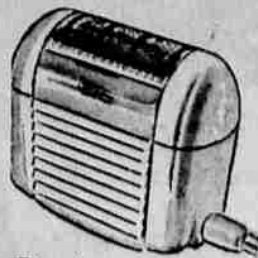

"After all this is the first case in medical history in which a baby with an outside heart is surviving and I'm afraid to build up my hopes too high."

Wasco County Retains Republican Majority

THE DALLES — (AP) — The Dalles and Wasco county retained their traditional Republican party majorities on the basis of registered voters on Dec. 1. County Clerk D. V. Bolton said.

But total registration dropped almost 1,000 from the 7,909 carried on the rolls at the November, 1950, general election to the 6,987 voters listed the first of this month. In the county, 4,102 persons registered as Republicans and 2,738 as Democrats.
