

Roseburg Firms Given Contracts At Camas Valley

By JEAN YODER

Construction bids for additions to the remodeling of the Camas Valley School were opened Jan. 25, in the school auditorium. The Camas Valley School Board approved the lowest bidder in each of the three divisions; general contracting, electrical work, and plumbing and heating.

Todd Building Company of Roseburg won the general contracting bid with a bid of $39,849. Ridenour, of Roseburg, was awarded the electrical contract, which went for $3,997. The plumbing and heating contract was given to Denn-Gerretsen, Roseburg, for a bid of $10,882. The total of all bids accepted was $54,728.

Approximately 6,000 is being spent for attorney and architectural fees, well-drilling, excavation, and other miscellaneous items connected with the construction, according to Superintendent Marlen Yoder. About $8,000 more will be expended for classroom furniture and equipment and for cafeteria furniture and kitchen equipment.

Present at the meeting were the three Camas Valley School board members, Oran Standley, J. A. Combs, and Mrs. Wilmer White; School Board Clerk Brunette Wilson; Architect Lou Metzger, Roseburg; Superintendent Yoder, and about 18 bidders and contractors. The matter of insurance covering the new and the old building was also discussed following the opening of the bids.

The monthly board of directors business meeting as well as a budget meeting will be held at 7 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 28.

Man Evades Bridge Toll, Leaps To Death

HUNTINGTON, W. Va. (AP)—An unidentified man, who refused to pay a five-cent bridge toll, apparently jumped to his death into the swollen Ohio River.

Azel Ramey, a toll taker on the Huntington-Chesapeake, O., span, said the man, about 40 to 45 years old, declined to pay his nickel for walking across the bridge toward Chesapeake. Ramey called after the man several times, threatening to call the police. When two Huntington patrolmen, responding to the toll taker's call, approached the man near the middle of the bridge, he climbed over the railing and jumped.

MRS. DON NOON, above, illustrates the way apartment dwellers will welcome workers in the "Mothers' March on Polio" Thursday night between 6:30 and 7:30. Where no porch light is available a pair of shoes, a scarf or a tie over the doorknob will signify that a "marching mother" is welcome and a contribution for the fight against polio awaits her. Roseburg Grade Pupils Will Get Hearing Tests Hearing tests of elementary pupils attending Roseburg public schools will be made during the next two weeks, according to Mrs. Dorothy Kitchin, school nurse.

Frances Chaney, Portland, of the State Health Department, is making the tests.

Pupils will be checked in the preliminary survey 48 at a time by a phonograph device which plays numbers at various levels of sounds over earphones. The pupils are asked to write the numbers down. Further checks are made of those youngsters who fail to get the numbers correctly.

Defects in tonsils and adenoids, often the cause of hearing deficiencies, will be two of the things looked for in the survey. If such defects are discovered, parents will be advised to contact their family physician and arrange for surgery, Mrs. Kitchin said.

The survey is being sponsored by the State Health Department through the County Health Office. The checks are made by the state once every three years.

Ernest Bolter, Former Roseburg Resident, Dies

Ernest Bolter, Portland, died in the Southern Pacific General Hospital Saturday, Jan. 25, according to word received in Roseburg. He had been ill for two months. The body is being shipped to Portland for burial and funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Besides the widow, Emma Bolter, survivors include three brothers, George and Ralph Bolter, both of Portland and A. M. Bolter of Bingen, Wash.

The Ernest Bolter family formerly lived in Roseburg and have since visited here a number of times at the Dexter Rice home and at the Robert N. Browning home. Mrs. Robert N. Browning and small daughter, Capitola, left Roseburg today for Portland to remain over for the funeral. Mrs. Browning is a granddaughter of George Bolter, also a former Roseburg resident.
