New Symphony Orchestra Here Schedules Debut

One of the most significant signs of growth of community culture is the development of a symphony orchestra.

Roseburg has reached that stage of development. As proof, the previously unheralded Roseburg Symphony Orchestra will make its debut Feb. 18 at the Junior High School auditorium.

With the Kiwanis Club taking the sponsoring hand, the infant orchestra group has planned an impressive program which includes Haydn's Symphony No. 7, the Grieg Piano Concerto and a Gluck overture. The featured artist has been named as Martha Jane Plimpton, who will play solo piano in the Grieg Concerto.

The orchestra was conceived last fall under the guidance of Dr. Kenneth H. Oakley, Martha Mulkey, Robert Davee and Wendell Johnson. Since then, the group has been practicing with between 30 and 40 members. It's an amateur group, which includes musicians from every walk of life and whose common ground is love of music.

According to Davee, a spokesman for the orchestra, a moving object of the group is to interest young people.

"Assignment India" a motion picture depicting YMCA activities in India, was shown Rotarians at a noon luncheon in the Umpqua Hotel Thursday.

The film depicted conditions in India and the efforts being made by the YMCA to alleviate the conditions of thousands who are without homes or food.

As part of their activities, the YMCA has provided homes for both boys and girls and have given them opportunities for acquiring an education and the ability to become a self-sustaining wage earner.

To combat the high mortality rate in the country, an intensive health program has been inaugurated by the organization. A college of physical education is being maintained by the YMCA.

Agricultural reform based on scientific principles is also being carried on by the organization's representatives with a view to supplying the country's food demand.

Mata And Hari Appear Monday

Mata and Hari, comedy dancers, longtime concert favorites and now top dance attraction on television, come to Roseburg Monday at 8:15 p.m. with their company in a program of danced theatre. Their performance is sponsored by the Roseburg Community Concert Association.

Miss Gladys V. Strong, association president, stressed that the appearance will be in the Senior High School, in order for the dance team to take advantage of better stage facilities.

Mata and Hari are considered one of the outstanding novelties of the entertainment world. Their recent successes on television have greatly augmented their public and this season they are making a tour of more than 70 cities. They opened at the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis in January and will close in Philadelphia in mid-April.

The Swiss Born Dancers turned to the concert stage in 1947 and have made nationwide tours every year since.

Girls Drum Corps Dated At Basketball Tourney

In recent weeks, practices for Roseburg's proud Knights of Pythias Drum and Bugle Corps have picked up considerably. The reason is a Saturday trip to Reedsport.

Last year, the girls marching group provided halftime entertainment at the sub-district basketball tournament. They made such a hit, they were called back this Saturday night to play at halftime in the Roseburg-Reedsport game.

The girls thus launch their 1952 season with a 10-minute exhibition drill complete with a new repertoire of marching routines and music.

Director Bill Black reports that 40 girls will make the trip.
