Twenty-Nine Persons Die In Airplane Crash

house as occupants, carrying children and pets, fled from doorways, windows and down fire escapes. Most of the 125 persons in the building were started from sleep by the crash and fire.

In Washington, Senate investigators said preliminary checks indicated that only one, instead of two engines, failed, but the inquiry was only beginning.

Wipes Out Family
The plunging airliner knifed through the top floor of the four-story brick apartment house, wiping out one whole family of three. Another resident died on the second floor, screaming behind a wall of flames.

The plane careened off the building, slinging wreckage for hundreds of yards around. The front of the fuselage catapulted into the playground of a children's home, burning fiercely, while the rear section lit in a treetop.

Unlike the other two crashes in which all plane passengers and crew were killed, 38 of those aboard, most of them in the rear section, miraculously escaped death. But like the crash 20 days ago, the plane spread death on the ground.

The plane nosed over and roared downward shortly after its take-off. In the apartment house below someone screamed "Plane crash! Everybody run!"

It was like a familiar signal in this industrial city of 110,000, which is about 10 miles south of New York City.

On Dec. 16, a non-scheduled C-46 dropped in flames into the Elizabeth River, killing all 56 aboard. On Jan. 22, an American Airlines Convair hurtled into a residential district, killing all 23 aboard and seven residents.

Newark Port Closed Down By Protests

Mayor J. Kirk Says Citizens Living Under "Umbrella Of Death"

NEWARK, N. J. — Operations of the huge $55,000,000 Newark Airport—called an umbrella of death over nearby Elizabeth—were shut down Monday after a third air crash shot a two-month death toll to 115.

Even before a National Airlines DC-8 sheared into a 52-family Elizabeth apartment house early Monday killing at least 29 persons frightened residents threatened to block the runways with their bodies.

Mayor James F. Kirk of Elizabeth said the city could no longer live under "an umbrella of death."

Newark city officials joined in the demand to close the airport which handles an average of 3,560 passengers and 273,970 pounds of freight daily.

Will Press Protests
They were prepared to press their protests before a public hearing by a House Aviation subcommittee scheduled for Monday before the latest tragedy struck. It will probably be postponed.

The Port of Newark Authority, which operates the airport, was ready to defend it at the hearing as one of the safest in the nation.

Prepared statements of its officers were delivered to newspapers but hastily withdrawn after Monday's crash.

Port Authority Executive Director Austin J. Tobin said he had no immediate comment on how the huge volume of Newark passenger and freight traffic could be absorbed.

Eleven major airlines plus six to 12 non-scheduled lines used the airport daily. Millions of dollars in bonds based on anticipated revenues of the airport are outstanding as well as additional millions in construction contracts and agreements with the federal government, the cities of Newark and Elizabeth and the airlines.

Growth Of Douglas P.-T. A. Since Organization In 1913 Reviewed On Its Anniversary

"Somehow it never occurred to us that we were making history," Mrs. Foster Butler mused when she was requested, as the first president of the first Parent-Teacher Association in Douglas county, to be guest of honor at Fullerton P. T.A.'s initial 'Founders' Day celebration in the new school, and to tell of the beginnings of the organization in this area.

Mrs. Butler's story revealed that two women had walked a mile to make a very special visit at Fullerton school one afternoon thirty nine years ago. One of them, Mrs. C. W. Bradford had read an article in a magazine about an organization called the Parent-Teacher Association, and, as they walked, she was telling her friend, Mrs. Butler, of this organization which she thought was wonderful. According to the magazine, the schools with P.T.A.'s were showing much improvement, especially in their educational programs.

The two women became very enthusiastic about these things and wanted them for their own school, and decided to present the idea to the four teachers of the four-room school situated on the hill where the Adventist school now stands.

The teachers, among whom were Professor R. E. Morris, principal, and Miss Ruth Swinney, were very receptive to the plan and agreed to support it.

There was no such organization in Douglas County at the time. Plan Gains Support

Mrs. Bradford and Mrs. Butler then made a house-to-house canvass, walking to 20 homes near the school to enlist the interest of parents. Judge J. C. Fullerton, who lived in the house which is now the Gordon Stewart home, was most interested and cooperative.

It was in his honor that the school had been named. The Louis Kohlhaegens were also enthusiastic and their enthusiasm was contagious. Mr. and Mrs. George M. Brown were interested. Mr. Brown was district attorney at the time. Mrs. Brown still lives across the street from the new school and has two grandchildren attending it. Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Bellows, who are still living in the same house, became so interested that Mr. Bellows accepted the appointment of temporary chairman for purposes of organization. The A. W. Burrs, the James McNabs, the R. W. Marsters and Mrs. Malinda McGee all pledged their support. Mr. and Mrs. Campbell, great grandparents of the Neuner children who attend the present Fullerton school, were also enlisted.

About thirty parents met on the appointed Friday in January of 1913, and with Mr. Bellows presiding, elected Mrs. Bradford as secretary and Mrs. Butler as president of that first Parent-Teacher Association in Douglas County.

Mrs. Butler admitted that she had felt very free prior to the election, because she had rather recently moved to Roseburg from the East and had expected an older resident to be elected president.

Evening meetings were held so that fathers might be able to attend. Parents brought their children and delegated some one to entertain them in another room, for there were no baby sitters. Improvements Launched

The P.T.A. immediately began to work for improvements, the first of which was to put protectors around the large ugly wood heaters, that stood in the corner of each room, in order to shield the children sitting next to the stoves. Judge Fullerton then gave money for drinking fountains so that thirsty children wouldn't have to run from the playground to the hydrant in the center of the hall to get water to drink.

Mr. Bellows offered ground for a park across from where the West Side Grocery now stands. The P.T.A. leased the property for one dollar a year to make the transaction legal. $200.00 was raised immediately for playground equipment. Mrs. Butler stated that the fine Fourth of July speeches which Mr. Brown made in this park will be recalled by many residents of this community.

Since there were no radios or cars, school activities became the communities' social activities. Picnics were a real attraction and afforded a money raising opportunity which enabled the P.T.A. to buy a piano for the school.

Sponsors First 4-H Club
Fullerton Parent-Teacher Association sponsored the first 4-H Club in Douglas county and arranged to have Professor H. C. Seymour come from Corvallis once a month to lecture. This club won many prizes at the county fair.

Mrs. Butler said, "I am proud to have had a part in P.T.A. and to have been able to observe its growth in these 39 years. It had much the same interests then as it has today."

There were three persons in the audience who were pupils in the school when it was comprised of four rooms.

By coincidence, the new Fullerton school is situated just across the street from Mrs. Butler's home, and her grandson, Robert Ellison, is a pupil there.

Membership in this P.T.A. has grown from its beginning of thirty to five hundred twenty. Daniel R. Dimick, president for 1951-52, is the only man to have held the reins of the organization since the night of its first election, when Mr. Bellows served as temporary chairman.

From this one unit, the Parent-Teacher movement has spread in this area until there are now twenty seven units, each working with its own school in accordance with the principles upon which the organization was founded: to promote the welfare of children and young people and to further parent education. These local units all work together and meet regularly as they formulate plans to further their work which is: "The Citizen Child: His Destiny, a Free World."

14. Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness;

15. And your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace;

17. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God:

SPOT ADVICE GABARDINE

Ordinarily, most fabrics used for suiting and similar purposes, are dyed before weaving. Gabardines, however, are dyed as one piece AFTER THE CLOTH HAS BEEN MADE. And the particular shade or color achieved is the result of the simultaneous application of two or three dyes together. Since oftentimes one of these dyes will be more fugitive than its companion, cleaning will cause a loss of color or "bleeding."

The situation is further complicated by the fact that gabardine may be made from wool, cotton, rayon or a mixture of fibers.

So—we'd like to say: DON'T BUY THE STUFF! But realizing that it does have many attractions to the wearer, we'll simply give you the most important precautions we know of to help keep them looking right.

1. Never spot gabardine with anything under any circumstances whatever. This may liberate dyes.
2. Be especially careful to avoid staining with acid or alcoholic beverages.
3. Clean often. Never use soap and water. And reconcile yourself to an eventual shine on the surfaces exposed to much rubbing. Meantime, whatever the fabric or the garment, you'll always get the best cleaning job when you bring it to us.
