Useless Waste Of Fund Charged To Armed Forces

WASHINGTON (AP)—Congress bombarded the Armed Forces Tuesday with charges of "needless and useless waste" of money and called on military top brass to fix the responsibility.

A House Armed Services subcommittee continued its inquiry in to Armed Forces buying practices.

Rep. Lyle D. Tamm, declared the United States may harm itself more than its potential enemies by indulging in "a military spending spree without regard to basic economic or economic capabilities."

He inserted a statement in the Congressional Record saying several billion dollars may well be eliminated from President Truman's $85,400,000,000 budget by reconsidering military spending.

"We are not interested in generalities, propaganda, alibis or evasion," Chairman Hebert, D-La., said Monday. "We want direct and responsive answers."

"In a day when the dollar can only purchase approximately 53 percent of its value we can not tolerate a system which gets only 20 percent return of that same dollar because of needless and useless waste."

Divergent Price Noted Staff investigators have reported widely divergent prices are paid by various government procurement officers for the same items. For instance, they say 60 watt light bulbs cost the Transportation Corps seven cents, Army Ordnance 14 cents, Khaki blankets cost the Federal Supply Service $4.65, the Medical Services $8.56 and the Marine Corps $9.89.

announced a five million dollar construction project at Ft. Monmouth, N. J. Lyle said the Atomic Energy Commission has expanded with a speed and recklessness which disregards the cost to the taxpayer.

Because it is done under the cloak of secrecy I am certain in my own mind," Lyle said, that recklessly spent which have added neither to the development of atomic energy or to the defense of our country.

It took the committee less than one minute to act after Arnall had discussed his qualifications and beliefs about inflation with the senators for an hour and a half. Arnall, in giving the senators his views, said he would continue studies already begun on taking controls off some commodities.

North Carolina's average field of lint cotton per acre for 1951 is estimated at 382 pounds. The 1950 average was only 148 pounds.
