Scot Crashes Winnie's Office For Job Promise

LONDON — A determined Scotsman, arrested for trying to barge into Prime Minister Churchill's house at 10 Downing Street, finally got what he went after—the promise of a job.

John Scobie, 26-year old laborer, had to do some fast talking, however, after bobbies took him in Tuesday on charges of insulting behavior and using insulting language.

Scobie kicked up a row at 10 Downing Street when a doorman suggested he write instead of dropping in uninvited.

Scobie, who comes from Glasgow, told Magistrate A. L. Stevenson, "All I wanted was work."

The magistrate released him on probation and told the probation officer to find Scobie a job.

This is Sea Swirl
T.M. REG.
new wonder wood of APMI...
How beautiful can plywood be? The answer is Sea Swirl, decorative plywood made by this firm. Although just introduced, it has had a very favorable reception by architects, builders, and by home owners who want to modernize.
But the big story behind Sea Swirl is this: APMI workers developed the idea; an employee named the product; employees make and sell it.
This is Job Security in its highest sense—a situation in which the workers have vision, initiative and enthusiasm to create and make a product so good, so practical and so popular that public demand results in more work for more people.
