Previously this special dinner had always been held in Roseburg, the Glide Camp Fire Girls joining up with other small community groups, but this year, the membership had gained so rapidly that the Glide organization was able to give its own individual affair.

The dining tables were arranged horse-shoe pattern, all with red, white and blue candles, and the speakers table decorated with "Cross Logs and Flames," which is the national emblem of the Camp Fire Girls. At each plate were handpainted placecards and handpainted paper napkins with Friendship design made by the girls. A delicious dinner cooked by the members was served to 70 guests.

Rodney Husted proceeded to the platform and as Master of Ceremonies introduced the groups. Ruth and Mary Webster of the Wahankas played two numbers, accordion and steel guitar duet. The Tanidacols gave a play "Charleston Tragedy." The Wa-di-lakas showed Camp Fire movies. The program was closed with an address by Attorney Paul Geddes entitled "The Friendship of the Camp Fire Girls."
