

Green Community Church Dedication Slated Sunday

Dedication of the new Green Community Church is scheduled Sunday at 3 p.m., marking the close of a successful campaign by residents of the Green area to raise funds and obtain material donations for the structure.

The dedication ceremony will be conducted by Dr. Edison Habegger, superintendent of the western district of the American Church Association. Dr. Habegger has been conducting the association's annual conference, held here starting April 15. The dedication will be the highlight of the conference.

Plans for construction of the church began in the fall of 1950 shortly after Rev. and Mrs. Ralph F. Knauf from the United Brethren's organization were called here Aug. 19, 1950.

A 1-acre site was selected in January of 1951, and ground breaking ceremony was held in February. The building, of frame construction, has 3700 feet of floor space, and has a modern forced draft heating plant.

The sanctuary seats 150 persons, with an overflow room to accommodate 100 more. The Sunday School can take care of 250. There is a young people's chapel, a choir loft in the center of the building behind the rostrum, kitchen facilities and a fellowship room. The church has a steeple with a spire 45 feet from the ground.

The portion of the church completed constitutes two units of a three-unit design. Plans have also been drawn up for a parsonage, to be started soon.

Only through the cooperation of sawmills of the area could the church have been made possible in so short a time, said the Rev. Knauf. Nineteen mills of the area contributed 90,000 board feet of lumber.

Volunteer labor was used to the extent possible and others of the area contributed generously, he said.

The Green Community Church is a registered corporation, affiliated with the Missionary Church Association, with headquarters at Ft. Wayne, Ind.

YOUR BODY

ROSEBURG, OREGON — These health articles are written and paid for by Dr. E. A. SMITH, Chiropractic Physician, 1300 Garden Valley Road, in the interest of public health and to help you understand the body function. Look for these informative articles every Saturday.

It is estimated that approximately 12 per cent of the people in this country have ulcers of the digestive tract, barring accidents as when certain poisons are swallowed, ulcers are slow in their development. Indigestion has plagued humanity for ages. The ancients suffered from it. Modern living has aggravated it immensely. Fast living, high tension, irregular hours, anxiety and the nervous trouble of modern life, added to a wrong and unbalanced diet, robbed of its protective and natural elements, will produce irritation and inflammation of the mucous membrane lining the stomach.

Transactions probably account for the sensation of hunger. A dilated stomach is caused by a narrowing or spasm of the pyloric opening. This condition may cause a retention of large amounts of fluid and fermentation. A dropped stomach is generally combined with a falling of the entire abdominal contents. Reaching for a dose of baking soda and hot water to relieve gas and distress after a badly balanced meal is simply treating the disease and not removing the cause. Colitis is an inflammation of the membrane which lines the large intestine or colon. This condition manifests itself by tenderness, pains across the abdomen and gas pressure. Colitis is more common in women than in men. In severe case the passage of mucus, sometimes tinged with blood and offensive matter and at times, shreds of mucous membrane, takes place. This condition often leads to ulceration. The formation of gas in the intestines is very painful.

Three stages usually occur in stomach trouble. For a long time, there is a stage known as inflammation. This manifests itself with pain, gas and discomfort after a meal. The second stage is known as the ulcerative stage, which means the beginning of permanent damage. This condition finally leads to the third and often malignant stage, from which conditions, recovery may be difficult. Laborers and other manual workers seldom suffer from ulcers while professional and business people are often the victim of stomach trouble. Deficient innervation, nervous tension, work, emotional strain, high living, late hours, irregular meals, hot and spicy foods contribute their share of trouble.

An excess of acid secretions is called hyperchlorhydria, gastric juice is being secreted all the time, but between feedings it is neutralized by the alkaline secretions of the duodenum and the pyloric glands. A churning wave of contraction passes through the stomach at approximately every twenty seconds. More vigorous contractions probably account for the sensation of hunger. A dilated stomach is caused by a narrowing or spasm of the pyloric opening. This condition may cause a retention of large amounts of fluid and fermentation. A dropped stomach is generally combined with a falling of the entire abdominal contents. Reaching for a dose of baking soda and hot water to relieve gas and distress after a badly balanced meal is simply treating the disease and not removing the cause. Colitis is an inflammation of the membrane which lines the large intestine or colon. This condition manifests itself by tenderness, pains across the abdomen and gas pressure. Colitis is more common in women than in men. In severe case the passage of mucus, sometimes tinged with blood and offensive matter and at times, shreds of mucous membrane, takes place. This condition often leads to ulceration. The formation of gas in the intestines is very painful.

Constipation, usually of long standing, precedes colitis, particularly the kind known as spastic colitis. In this condition, the entire colon is found to be dilated in places and constricted in others, forming a series of pockets. This ballooning of the colon may be very painful and is aggravated by nervous tension, emotional upsets and dietetic indiscretions.

An excessive intake of roughage may cause and always aggravate colitis. Berries and seedy fruit are injurious to the colon. A carefully selected diet is indicated. Women, having a more delicately balanced nervous system, are mostly victims of colitis. (Pd. Adv.)

Dancing Bear Turns Out To Be Organizer's Wife

LONDON, (AP) — Posters advertising a fete at suburban All Saints Church said there would be a dancing bear.

Edmund MacMichael, director of the performing Animals Defense League rushed off to the vicar, the Rev. P. W. Rushmer, with a strong protest.

Dancing bears, he said are trained by thumping a drum while the bear tries to keep his paws cool on a hot tub. A Church of England fete, he added, was no suffering.

The vicar sent him to John Purchase, organizer of the fete.

Federal Corruption Probe Faces Excellent Prospect Of Death By Talk Marathon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chances look good for the investigation of government corruption to be talked to death. Even if the wheels started moving now, and they haven't, there wouldn't be much time for a thorough search. There are only eight months to election.

Although President Truman picked Judge James P. McGranery for attorney general last week it may be many weeks before he gets the job, if ever.

He can't get it unless the Senate approves. Before the Senate can vote the Senate Judiciary Committee will examine and question him, taking weeks, maybe.

In the course of those weeks the investigation of government corruption may be lost sight of in the investigation of McGranery.

When it's all over, if the Senate disapproves, Truman will have to find another attorney general. This could go on indefinitely.

In the end McGranery may get Senate approval. That by no means starts the investigation going full swing.

Members of a House Judiciary Subcommittee are investigating the Justice Department and they may want a crack at McGranery, since he'd be boss of it.

FBI Chief Drawn In
The subcommittee may also question J. Edgar Hoover if McGranery goes ahead with his announced plan of having the FBI chief investigate corruption.

The questioning of Hoover probably will not be critical but will be done to find out how he feels about being No. 1 investigator of government.

As attorney general and head of the Justice Department, McGranery would have the right to tell Hoover to make the investigation.

But Hoover has hordes of friends in Congress and he's already on record as not wanting to spread the work of the FBI any further than it is now.

When Newbold Morris came down here Feb. 1 to be the No. 1 investigator, President Truman asked Congress to let him subpoena witnesses.

Without such power Morris would have his hands tied. Congress tied them. It refused him the power. Hoover balks at Job.

But then a bill was introduced to give Hoover the very power which Congress refused Morris thus making Hoover the No. 1 digger — into corruption.

Hoover objected. He didn't want the subpoena power. Congress promptly knocked down the bill.

The FBI under Hoover is an investigatory agency. It can't compel witnesses to testify. It prosecutes no one. It turns its information over to the Justice Department to prosecute if it wishes.

McGranery, who was very vague anyway about what he wants Hoover to do, didn't say anything about subpoena power for him.

But one member of the House Judiciary Subcommittee said Monday night his group would certainly want to find out what McGranery has in mind for Hoover, and how Hoover feels about it.

If Hoover gets involved in an investigation like this, he may get smeared by one side or the other, which is about the last thing he'd like since he's spent a lifetime
