Mix music with science and you come up with AN OVERTURE FOR THE DEDICATION OF A NUCLEAR REACTOR... or THE CYCLOTRON'S NIGHTMARE. At least, that's what Dr. Arthur Roberts of Oakridge, Tennessee, has done. He finds that his research into nuclear physics gives him ideas for musical compositions. And just recently he gave a premiere recital of his overture at Oakridge. The work was received with mixed emotions. Some folks said its themes were repetitious. And others said, "So what, chain reaction repeats itself too!"
We'll all probably be hearing more about the new Atom music and other such works. It just goes to prove that composers have come out of their IVORY towers and into the thick of things... including scientific research. Or maybe it shows that other interests stimulate the composer to new and original musical works. Composers can no longer afford to be one-sided with regard to their lives and daily doings... that's for sure. Anyway... plenty of new things are happening in the musical world. You hear about them every day.
And whether it's that early morning rush or the late evening quiet, music's good to have around. It brings out the best in all of us. That's why we're here to help you choose the music to enhance your day. Come see us soon at OTT & RICKETTS MUSIC STORE, 101-105 W. Cass St. Phone: 3-3202 (Paid Advertisement)
