

Mineko Imai Talks On Flower Arranging Monday

Mineko Imai, charming exchange student from Japan to the University of Oregon, delighted a large audience Monday evening by giving a talk and demonstrating flower arranging. Miss Imai was sponsored by the Roseburg Town and Country Garden Club.

Mrs. Leland Van Allen, president of the club, introduced the guest speaker. Miss Imai told her audience there were three cultures, which were of utmost interest to Japanese girls: flower arranging, tea ceremony and brush writing. To be fully cultured, Japanese girls must be proficient in those three arts.

Although having only been in the United States for six months, Miss Imai speaks excellent English. Her humor and charm were delightful and her beautiful floral arrangements received the applause of the audience. Miss Imai will be in the United States as an exchange student for two years.

Following the talk by Miss Imai, a colored film of flowers and gardens was enjoyed.

Beauty Expert

"There's no better way than changing your coiffure to get a mental lift," declares Miss Ruth Wilcox, above, beauty consultant from Helena Rubinstein's, who will visit Roseburg Pharmacy during the week of June 2 through June 7.

"If you don't feel like cutting your hair—you needn't," this expert declares. "There is more than one way to convert your coiffure," says Miss Wilcox, who points out that color can completely change one's personality. "For example, you can give your own natural hair shade a vivid highlight—or play up a flattering hue that complements your skin tone and eye coloring," she says.

Visiting here to show how even hair groomer and shampoo can help add color to hair in addition to color tint rinses, and still give 'wash-in-wash-out' ease, this consultant is also well versed in solving any hair problem from dandruff to limp, drab hair.

Those having interests in the latest news in coiffure stylings are asked to see Miss Wilcox during the week and find out not only what the styles are but which is the most becoming to the various individuals.

Miss Wilcox will also give advice on right make-up hues and blends.

All consultations are without charge. All women of Douglas County are invited to see Miss Wilcox during her stay here.
