Davis, Former D. A., To Prosecute Monk Case

Circuit Judge Carl E. Wimberly Thursday appointed Robert G. Davis, former district attorney, as special prosecutor in the state's case against Frank Monk.

Robert M. Stults, newly-appointed district attorney, formerly represented Monk, Judge Wimberly explained in his appointment.

Monk is accused of embezzling some $250 in funds of the Patrick Kelly Post of Veterans of Foreign Wars.

None of the criminal cases, including the state's case against Monk, have been set on the docket for the current term of Circuit Court. Also pending is the state's case against Daniel Webster Smith, accused of first degree murder in the shotgun slaying of John H. Jenkins of Camas Valley.

Injunction Order Bans Use Of Gateway Road

Circuit Judge Carl E. Wimberly Thursday issued a temporary injunction restraining Charles and Dora Bundy and others from using a gateway road for logging purposes on property of Louis S. and Theressa E. Kohlhagen.

The Kolhagens filed suit for the temporary injunction and also for a permanent injunction.

placed. Heede says that 25,000 pople in the city are now looking for work.

"Forests in Oregon are different from those in Germany," he explains, "because all trees are planted by hand in Germany, and they are much smaller. Pine, spruce and Douglas fir trees predominate in commercial stands."

He notes that Oregon forests are natural and the trees taller and bigger, although aware that tree farming is rapidly being developed in the United States. The forester is also amazed at the varieties of types of trees of commercial value in this country.
