Paul Wallace, Salem Civic Leader, Passes

SALEM (AP) — Word has been received here of the death in Chicago of Paul B. Wallace, 73, Salem civic leader.

He died Monday at the Chicago Airport after suffering a heart attack.

Wallace was en route to the 50th anniversary of his graduating class at Princeton University when he was stricken.

He came to Salem with his parents as a child. He was the former owner of the Salem Water Company and owner of the Valley Motor Co.

He had endowed a number of charitable and educational institutions.

State Tourist Business May Beat Record Set Last Year

SALEM — The state's third largest industry, the visitor and travel business, from all indications, promises another record year possibly even larger than last year's record of $121,000.00, the Travel Information Division, Oregon State Highway Department, announced this week.

Beginning at $25,000.00 in 1935, the travel business in Oregon has consistently increased each year through the cooperation of the people of Oregon, chambers of commerce, highway associations and the Travel Information Division.

This year Oregon travel and vacation facilities have been publicized to a total of 88,099,509 magazine and newspaper subscribers. Full page color advertisements have been run in such magazines as Saturday Evening Post, Holiday, National Geographic and Coronet Magazines. In addition many other magazines have published black and white and two color, one and two-column ads telling the Oregon variety-vacation story. A total of 37,209,706 newspaper subscribers have been invited to take Oregon vacations this year in an advertising campaign stretching from coast to coast.

Wed., June 11, 1952—The News-Review, Roseburg, Ore. 9

Both the newspaper and magazine advertisements carry coupons asking potential Oregon visitors to send for free information from the Travel Information Division in Salem. These coupons have produced over 85,000 inquiries thus far this season and promise to bring over 10,000 more before the end of the summer.

The Travel Information Division distributed over 900,000 pieces of literature last year to persons wanting Oregon information on everything from climate to dude ranches. Hundreds of these are answered by special letter with specific information on travel and vacation facilities.

Mystery Blast Wrecks West Salem Building

SALEM (AP) — An explosion demolished a building in West Salem Monday morning, breaking glass windows of all buildings in the neighborhood and shaking homes within a six mile radius.

The building was located on the main street of West Salem, 100 yards from the west end of the Salem-West Salem Bridge.

Cause of the explosion was not known. Rolland Tangeman, 52, of Independence, walked into the building with a lighted cigarette, which might have ignited acetylene gas to set off the blast.

Tangeman suffered a broken nose and a possible broken back.
