Weekend Guests At Summer Homes, Variety Of Hosts About Stand-Off

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Weekend guests are the thistles in many a summer paradise.

People who own a small place in the country love to trade horror tales about the weird guests that descend upon them from the city in quest of tax-free entertainment.

They often speak of these visitors as if they were a ravenous locust plague. The average weekend guest is pictured as a man who —

(A) Leaves his footprints on the bathtub and walls;

(B) Tries to kiss the host's wife behind his back;

(C) Keeps tramping on his host's children, and not always accidentally;

(D) Laps up the host's entire monthly liquor supply, then makes long distance calls to friends in London and Paris, leaving the charges for his host to pay.

But it always has seemed to me this is a one-sided story. All rural hosts agree there is no such thing as a perfect weekend guest. On the other hand, it isn't exactly easy to find a perfect weekend host.

It might be a good idea if long-suffering weekend guests banded together and got some Duncan Hines or Emily Post to protect them.

Warnings Suggested
Why not put up signs before all country homes rating the owners? For example: "Host strongly recommended but wife is terrible gossip." Or, "food okay, but host is terrible bore." Or, "Guest beware — bring your own sandwiches." Or even, "Run for your life."

Guests who are invited to spend "A quiet restful weekend away from it all" must learn by trial and error now that a host in the suburbs isn't always the same fellow he seemed in the city.

Here are a few standard types, recognizable to all veteran guests:
(1) The Slave-Labor Host — he shows up wearing overalls and carrying a trowel. All he wants you to do is help him build a garage and a 100-foot winding concrete driveway between Friday and Sunday evening.

(2) The Keep-Fit Host — every morning before dawn he barges into your room saying, "If we hurry we can get in five sets of tennis before noon. That'll leave us plenty of time to play softball with the kids, and then we can go horse-back riding." What does he care if you drop dead?

Outdoors Mosquitoes
(3) The Ain't Nature Grand Host — This husky boy has to have every meal outdoors. The mosquitoes eat you as you try to eat a barbecued hotdog that looks like a burned clothes pin. The salad he made with lettuce from his own garden also turns out to have a few sprigs of poison ivy in it.

(4) The Everflowing Bottle Host — He shows up at the station with baggy eyes. You just know he has poured a gallon of gin into his swimming pool, because he can't even take a dip into the water unless it has a martini flavor.

(5) The Make a Profit Host — The first thing he does is set up a card table, and he and his wife play bridge together like Hoyle and Mrs. Hoyle. If they don't win enough off you to buy a sailboat, their weekend is ruined, and you're a bum.

There is still another type host, the kind that guests dream about but never meet. He is the perfect host. When you arrive, he hands you the keys to his house and car.

Then he packs up his wife and kids, calls a taxi, drives away — and doesn't come back until Tuesday, by which time you naturally have gone, refreshed, rested, and happy after a wonderful weekend.
