

State Prison Farm Escaper Captured

PORTLAND (AP)—Lee J. Marsh, 33-year-old escapee from the state prison farm, was back in custody Monday.

State police captured him Saturday near Brightwood where he said he had gone to get pickers for his 37-acre strawberry farm near Gresham.

Marsh told police he had been to Montana and back since his escape last March. He was flown there by a friend and worked until he had enough money to buy a car, he said.

Police said he drove back to his farm at Gresham and was operating it at the time of his capture.

He had a little more than a year of a three-year prison sentence to serve at the time of his escape. He had been convicted of larceny in Tillamook county.

Major Clyde W. Adair, formerly with the United Petroleum Corp. in Roseburg and now stationed at Ashiya Air Base, Japan, will be released from active service in November, 1952, according to his mother, Mrs. Margaret B. Adair.

Adair's wife, Mrs. Bess B. Adair, and three children, Bonnie, Marilyn and Mike, left from San Francisco on May 24 to meet Major Adair in Manila, where the ship landed. He flew to Manila to pick up his family, Mrs. Adair stated. His family will stay in Japan until his return.

Major Adair was called into active duty in 1951 after five years of service in World War II, his mother said. For a year he was stationed at the Portland Air Base. Associated with the 403rd Troop Carrier Wing, he is serving with many fellow Oregonians.

He is in charge of material for his base. Raised in Roseburg, Major Adair attended Senior High School, and later studied at Oregon State College. After returning to the United States the family plans to live in Portland.

Oregon Accidents Kill 7 Persons

By The Associated Press

Weekend accidents in Oregon claimed seven lives. Six of the victims, including two teen-agers, died in traffic mishaps.

Bonnie Winter, an 18-year-old Sandy girl, and Sharon Baylink, 19, Troutdale, were drowned when their car missed a bridge and plunged into the Little Deschutes River 90 miles north of Klamath Falls. Police said the accident probably occurred about 11 p.m. Friday. The submerged car and the two bodies were found Saturday.

Lindy Louis Church, 24, a Tongue Point sailor, was killed early Sunday when a car plunged off Sunset Highway near Elsie. The driver, Louis Salas, also a sailor, was injured.

Harold Field, 24, of the Quinby area, suffered fatal injuries early Sunday when a car in which he was riding left the road and crashed north of Salem. Three other occupants of the car suffered minor injuries.

Roy Garner of Rogers, Ark., was killed outright in a truck collision 60 miles east of Bend Saturday. The truck in which he was riding struck the rear of another.

Mrs. Ruth B. Andrews, 53, became Portland's 24th traffic fatality of the year when she died Saturday night from injuries suffered a few hours earlier in a collision on Portland's rain-slicked streets.

Morse Threatens 'Walk' If Taft Nominated depends on who the Democratic candidate will be." Denver Greets Ike Eisenhower, about that time, was arriving in Denver to open a political headquarters. A crowd of 100,000 cheered him and his wife on their arrival.

Taft, in an earlier TV program (CBS), said he would never run for President again if he failed to win the nomination this year — while expressing confidence he already has almost enough delegates to win it.

Out west, Eisenhower's reception was perhaps the warmest he has received in his short political career — a career the next three weeks can make or break as he tries to swing GOP convention delegates to his side.

Won't Appoint MacArthur

Before leaving for Denver, he told a Detroit news conference that he disagreed with Taft on the issue of confidence in the joint chiefs of staff; made it clear he would not, if elected President, bring Gen. Douglas MacArthur into the government (Taft has said he would); and defended his previous statement that it is possible to cut the federal budget by as much as 40 billion dollars in the next few years.

Eisenhower insisted he meant what he said: The cut could be made by reducing all government spending, including military outlays.

Kefauver's California presidential delegation, with 68 votes at the national convention, came out firmly Sunday for a compulsory Fair Employment Practices Act.

Kefauver has said he believes in civil rights legislation, and would support FPC if it is in the party platform, although he does not believe it should be made compulsory.

Flag Day Ceremonies Conducted By Elks Lodge

Flag Day ceremonies were conducted Saturday by the Roseburg Elks lodge. The observance opened with a salute at 6 a.m., when 21 bombs were exploded in rotation on Mt. Nebo.

An impressive flag ceremony was conducted in the evening by the lodge officers and ladies of the Auxiliary from the balcony of the lodge temple, despite a light rain. The flag Day ceremonial is one of the few public ritualistic programs presented by the lodge.

Presence Of Tiny Seal In Umpqua Offers Mystery

How a seal got to central Douglas County 100 miles from the ocean remained a mystery today, but William Pitney, fish biologist for the State Game Commission, advanced the belief it was brought here by some individual and released.

Pitney said it was hardly conceivable a seal—a tiny one at that—could battle its way this far up the Umpqua River, nor that it would, even if it could.

The seal was found by a couple of surprised boys, members of a party from the Green Community Church swimming in the river about three miles south of Roseburg. The boys, Wayne Medford and Carl Jacobs, sighted the sea animal as it came ashore. They notified State Police, who in turn notified the Game Commission.

The sea, a non-fur bearing specie, commonly called harbor seals, weighed only about 18 pounds, an appeared to be not more than one-fourth grown, said Pitney. It is probable a seal of that age would still be with its mother, he said.

It most certainly, he surmised, would not be fighting its way up the swift Umpqua River that far from home.

This specie, he said, needs salt water in which to survive. The little animal was pretty sick and had to be put away, he added.

"I'm pretty much burned up over the affair," he said. "It is against the law to capture a seal, and few folks have the facilities for keeping them."

The creature was doomed to die, whether left in the river or kept in captivity, he said.

Bull seals sometimes go on a marauding trip, and they have been found in the Willamette river as far inland as Oregon City, according to Pitney, but the Columbia and upper Willamette, while not salt water, are affected by the tides.

A small seal probably would not have the physical endurance to duplicate even that feat, he said.

D. W. Smith On Trial On Murder Charge

pected to last at least through the day. Judge Wimberly asked the first questions and explained to the prospective jurors—who heretofore had tried only civil cases—the difference of the burden of proof on criminal trials.

"Civil cases require a preponderance of evidence on one side or the other," Judge Wimberly said. "In this case, in order to get a conviction, the state must prove guilt beyond a reasonable doubt."

Questions Touch On Liquor

Among questions asked by Defense Attorney Paul Geddes were these: "Would you have any prejudice in this case simply because of the use of intoxicating liquor?"

"If you are convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that the defendant is guilty of manslaughter but not of a higher degree of murder, would you be willing to return a verdict of manslaughter?"

"If you were Dan Smith sitting here, would you be willing to accept a juror with your frame of mind?"

Questions asked by District Attorney Stults and Deputy District Attorney Donald S. Kelley included:

"Do you have any scruples about signing a verdict that carries the death penalty?"

Questions asked by the prosecution indicated evidence may be presented later in the trial about "angry words" spoken between the defendant and the victim and heavy use of both men of intoxicating liquor.

Umpqua Flying Club Buys Another Airplane

Purchase of a Cessna 140, two-place airplane, was announced today by the Umpqua Flying Club. Purchased at Medford, the ship was brought to Roseburg Sunday by H. R. McTaggart and Dr. Bruce Tuck, who were flown to Medford by Dr. E. W. Carter in the club's Navion.

The all-metal ship, it is reported, is of a type extensively used for G. I. training. It is especially equipped for instruction purposes. The plane carries radio, starter, navigation lights and all needed instruments for blind flying. It replaces the Luscombe trainer recently sold by the club to Deputy Sheriff Ira Byrd.

Barn, Equipment, 1,000 Chickens Toll Of Fire

Fire early today razed the big barn on the C. G. Campbell ranch on Buckhorn road, two miles east of Dixonville.

Flames were first noticed about 2 a.m. and the fire had progressed too far for the rancher and neighbors to do anything but try to save some equipment.

Neighbors said the 54 by 90-foot barn was built about 1910. About 1,000 chickens burned up in the fire. A corn picker, brooder equipment and tools were also lost in the blaze.

Part of the loss was covered by insurance.

Groom, 21 Racehorses Die In $250,000 Fire

BELMONT, N. Y. (AP)—A groom and 21 racehorses were burned to death early Monday in a spectacular fire which destroyed half of a big barn at Belmont Park racetrack.

The groom, found burned to a crisp, apparently had been kicked unconscious by a horse he was trying to save. He was identified by police as Alfred Mitchell, 23, of Laurel, Md.

Nassau County Fire Marshal George Clough estimated damage at $250,000, including horses, barn and equipment.
