coast, was not damaged. The Santa Fe said it would move its passengers by bus.
But the main-traveled route between here and Bakersfield, the Ridge Route (U. S. 99) was blocked by a slide near Gorman.
A highway patrolman said "it seems like the top of a mountain slid off," burying the busy, four-lane freeway route under 25 feet of dirt at one point.
Elsewhere in the isolated Tehachapi mountains, which separate coastal Southern California from the San Joaquin valley, there were growing reports of loss and injuries.
At least 10 persons were hospitalized at Mojave, 20 miles east of Tehachapi.
A hotel and store at Grapevine was reported wrecked, with two persons injured.
Shocks were still being felt in the community of Frazier Park four hours after the first quake hit at 4:52 a. m. PDT.
The strongest quake in Southern California in nearly a half-century, the thinly-populated area in which it hit kept the death toll from being much higher.
Its force was felt, mostly in a rolling motion, from San Francisco on the north to the Mexican border on the south, and eastward into Nevada.

Bakersfield Hit
Bakersfield itself, a city of 35,000 was hard hit. A refinery was afire, the downtown business district was littered with rubble.
Plate glass windows were splintered and an explosion blew out the walls of an automobile agency.
The Kern County courthouse at Bakersfield showed such cracks that employees were not permitted to enter.
Dozens were treated for shock and minor cuts and bruises at Kern county general hospital.

Democrats Plan Orderly Routine For Convention

By FRANK SINGISER
Mutual Network Commentator
CHICAGO — More bunting, prettier girls, less wrangling and showing in front of television cameras, and a streamlined series of eloquently brief speeches — that's the Democratic Party's recipe for this week.
The National Democratic Party Chairman, Frank McKinney announced that all Democrat committee meetings and convention sessions will be open to all avenues of public information. In short, radio, television, the newsreels, newspapers, magazines and the public will be given free access to every official gathering of the Democrats this week. There will be no cry of "Iron Curtain" if Frank McKinney has anything to say about it.
On the question of speeches, the Democrat orators are being encouraged to speak eloquently to the point. Nominating speeches are to be limited to 15 minutes for each candidate, with two second speeches of not more than 5 minutes each. Major addresses to the convention are being kept to the smallest number possible.
No Session Delays
Each session will begin on time, with an emergency delay deadline of 15 minutes that the Chairman hopes he will never need. As to the time-consuming milling about of protesting delegates and governors making mighty medicine on the floor or on the speakers' platform, that is all taboo this week. Parliamentary procedure will protect the right of minority groups to be heard. But the same parliamentary rules will be used to protect the right of the majority to get along with the business at hand.
Another big change from the hoopla and frenetic snake dancing of the Republicans staged after each nomination on Thursday night will be the banning of all professional demonstrators from the convention floor.
There will be almost 150 more women delegates and alternates at the Democrat conclave than were at the Republican convention. The distasteful side will have the largest number ever to attend a national party convention in the United States: 525 women delegates or alternates. At least five of the lady Democrats will give those streamlined main addresses that Chairman McKinney says should run not more than 20 minutes. And a full program of activities from a school on political party organization to fashion shows has been planned by the Democrats' Director of the Women's Division, Mrs. India Edwards.
Don't be surprised if at least one woman is named to run for nomination as vice president of the United States. Mrs. Edwards said she would not stop her own name from being placed before the Convention. But she admits 1952 may be a little too soon for even Democrats to realize the importance of a woman on the party ticket.
The plans are made. And the Democrats are sure they will have a well run show. But as any convention reporter knows, anything

Feud Of Oregon Delegates Boils At Convention

By B. L. LIVINGSTONE
CHICAGO — Oregon's warring delegates to the Democratic convention scheduled a no-holds-barred Monday-only hours before the convention opens—in a sharp battle over the good-faith intentions of opposing political factions.
The Oregon feud erupted at a delegation caucus Sunday over reports and allegations that some delegates were planning to bolt their primary election pledge to support the presidential candidacy of Sen. Estes Kefauver.
In advance of Monday's meeting, cooler heads in the delegation sought to avert a show-down which they feared might permanently damage the Oregon Democratic organization.
The fight was touched off by Thomas R. Mahoney, Portland attorney in an attempt to force the delegates to reaffirm individually their pledge for Kefauver.
Mahoney, asserting that "word has gotten out that this delegation is not wholeheartedly behind Kefauver," demanded a roll call vote on a motion to back the Tennessee.
Oregon's 12-vote delegation is pledged under Oregon primary law to back Kefauver so long as he has a reasonable chance of winning the presidential nomination.
First Round Wagon
In a parliamentary scrap, Mahoney, backed by former Democratic State Chairman William L. Josslin, scored a preliminary victory over the faction headed by National Committeeman Monroe Sweetland.
By a 6-4 vote of the delegates present, the Mahoney-Josslin forces defeated a counter-move by Sweetland and Delegate Harry D. Boivin of Klamath Falls to prevent Mahoney's motion from coming to a vote.
But before the delegation could be polled, Mahoney agreed with Sweetland to put over the vote until Monday when the full delegation was present.
The flare-up came on the heels of rumors, for which there was no confirmation, that the Oregon delegates were wavering in their support for Kefauver.
After Sunday's stormy caucus, Sweetland told a news man that "every member of the Oregon delegation as I know, intends to support Kefauver as long as he's in the running."
He added, however, that "I don't want our already small number (of delegates) to be further diminished in importance by mortgaging it to an unforeseeable future."

Wages Hike Or Reduced Services Up To Voters

the original budget and confine salary increases for present employees to a straight five per cent increase over last year and to retain the budget figures for additional badly needed employees upon the same basis. This we have done in good faith and if the vote is favorable, will see that it is carried out, in spite of the fact that the Taxpayers Committee now advises us that they will not support the budget as agreed upon, unless the amount of tax to be raised is reduced by approximately $40,000.00 more.
Twice this year the voters of Roseburg have been requested to approve a tax levy in excess of the six per cent limitation approved by the budget committee, but only from 5 to 10 per cent of those eligible have expressed their opinions by voting.
On Tuesday, July 22, another election is to be held, and this will be the last one this year. The law does not permit time for another vote. If the budget is not then approved by the voters, the City will be forced to confine its tax levy to the amount permitted by the 6 per cent limitation, being $197,847.00, which means that for the coming year the City will have to get along on $95,409.00 less than last year.
The budget committee will then have to curtail the activities of the City accordingly. It will have to determine what services are to be limited or eliminated. Cuts may have to be made in fire protection, police service, street repair and maintenance, library service, park maintenance, and street lighting. Installation of badly needed traffic lights now planned may not be made. Open hours for the swimming pool may have to be cut down and the charges increased. Several employees probably will have to be released. All in all, skeleton service only may be necessary.
General improvement work provided for in our budget has not been questioned by the Taxpayers League. Without going into detail we assure you that it is needed. We feel that the serious retrenchment now threatened hangs upon the question as to whether or not the voters of this city believe in our stand on adequate wages for our employees. We believe that if they cannot be paid, it is far better to curtail services and cut wherever necessary to come within the 6 per cent limitation. The decision now is one for the voters. You owe it to yourself; to vote as you see fit—but vote.
