

Buck Deer Season Opens Oct. 1

PORTLAND — The State Game Commission Friday set Oct. 1 as the opening day of buck deer season in Oregon.

That is four days later than was announced in tentative regulations two weeks ago. But it also was earlier than recommended by foresters who urged a later season because of the danger of forest fires.

A three-day, either-sex deer season in agricultural areas for hunters who don't get a buck during regular season was approved. The regular season will follow the either-sex hunt in which the regular season will end Oct. 17.

Varicose veins are permanently enlarged veins which commonly occur on the legs; they are, however, also seen in other parts of the body. They stand out from the skin as bluish, knotty, winding cords which flatten out when pressure is made upon them, and in most cases shrink in size when the patient lies down. Sometimes bluish, small, soft, rounded lumps or a fine, branching network of veins may be seen.

Varicose veins are most frequent in women, especially in those who stand for long periods of time. Any obstruction to the return flow of the blood from the veins toward the heart, such as a tight garter about the leg, will produce varicose symptoms; as will also the pressure upon the veins by the enlarged uterus in pregnancy, or of tumors in the same region if extensive sufficiently to produce pressure upon the large veins.

Often varicose veins, if not extensive may go on for years without either increasing in size or causing any trouble whatsoever. When they are of long duration, the legs may become swollen and hard and there is often an associated eczema, with itching. This leads to scratching and sores. The sores may enlarge and become what are called varicose ulcers. These ulcers are difficult to heal

Lunch was taken care of at the candidates' open cheese and cracker bars and dinner was superfluous after the round of receptions, cocktail parties, etc., which offered the gamut from caviar at the invitation of a rum punch and crackers at the open receptions.

Senator Russell set up a lounge complete with a samovar of hot coffee for members of the press only. The place was crowded as there was also a four by four foot television screen and overstuffed chairs.

Elmer, the Democratic mule, actually held a press conference in the basement. Didn't say much. As I said at the beginning, I needed one of those IAK buttons. Somehow the tremendous crowd sating undercurrent which marked the GOP convention was lacking. The only way I can explain it is that, first, the Democrats were in and used to it, and second, the Democratic propaganda program was based on "Security," which blared forth from banner after banner but failed to carry the impact of a banner marked "Taff" or "Ike." It was hard to get steamed up about with everyone wondering if Harry four or five men all at once, would carry after all.

Stevenson Gets One Oregon Vote

CHICAGO — Oregon's lone vote for Adlai Stevenson at the Democratic convention, before the nomination went to the Illinois governor by acclamation—was cast on the third ballot by Dave Ennos, Sweet Home.

"I have voted twice for Senator Kefauver. I felt I have discharged my obligation to Senator Kefauver and I therefore vote for Governor Stevenson," Ennos told the convention when Oregon's 12-man delegation was polled at the request of the State Sen. Thomas Mahoney.

The rest of the delegates stayed with Kefauver for the three ballots. Under Oregon law they were pledged to support him as long as he had a reasonable chance of winning.

Monroe Sweetland, Oregon's Democratic National committee man, also made a brief speech as he cast his ballot. He said: "Although Governor Stevenson is my personal choice, I shall abide by the will of the people as expressed on the Oregon primary." He added that he thought Kefauver would make a good vice presidential candidate.

No one was hurt aboard the Baranof, an Alaska Steamship company vessel bound for Ketchikan, Alaska, with 150 passengers and a crew of 100.

The freighter was the 7,202 gross ton Triton, built in Los Angeles in 1944 and registered to the Gretson Brothers of Ithaca, Greece.

The ships collided at 1:40 a.m. PDT less than two miles off Entrance Island on the Vancouver Island's east coast.

Nip And Tuck Balloting Gives Bid To Stevenson

inee in this smoke-hazed convention hall at an early morning hour.

The Illinois governor keynoted his own campaign in his acceptance speech.

"More important than winning the election is governing the nation," he told the Democrats solemnly. "That is the test of a political party—the acid, final test.

"When the tumult and the shouting die, when the bands are gone and the lights are dimmed, there is the stark reality of responsibility in an hour haunted by those gaunt grim specters of strife, disension and materialism at home and ruthless, inscrutable and hostile power abroad."

Asserting that the "bloodiest, most turbulent age of the Christian era is far from over, Stevenson declared:

"Sacrifice, patience, understanding and implacable purpose may be our lot for years to come. Let's face it. Let's talk sense to the American people."

Stevenson's talk contrasted sharply with the "give 'em hell" speech with which Truman assailed the Republicans in introducing the new standard bearer formerly to the convention.

Truman said the Republicans had tried to stop progress and they are at it again this year. Praising the Democratic platform, the President said his party is going to win again this year.

Applauding the choice of Stevenson, whom he helped along toward the nomination by getting Harrison to withdraw, Truman said he is going to "take my coat off and do everything I can" to help him.

Stevenson, who said he had accepted the nomination humbly in the belief that a better man could have been found for it, promised that "I will fight to win... with all my heart and soul."

U.S. Walks Out On Truce Talks

MUNSAN, Korea — Allied negotiators Saturday accused the Communists of "utter hypocrisy" and walked out of the Korean truce talks for a week.

"If you have anything worth saying (before Aug. 3), you can say it to our staff officers," Harrison declared.

The walkout ended the first open session at Panmunjon in three weeks. Eighteen off-the-record meetings since July 4 failed to break the deadlock over how to exchange prisoners of war—key obstacle to an armistice.
