

National Wealth Of Japan Missing

TOKYO — A Japanese Parliament committee said Tuesday it has confirmed that a large quantity of Japanese national treasure is missing and that receipts by occupation officials for some of it are 'extremely unclear and figures do not jibe.'

The report said also that much of the treasure may have disappeared during World War II while the property was still in Japanese hands.

"We have confirmed the loss of a considerably large quantity of precious metals and diamonds, including the Empress Nagako's crown made of gold and platinum and studded with five large diamonds," the committee said.

The Empress gave the crown to the government during the war as a patriotic example.

The exact amount of treasure unaccounted for was not reported by the committee. Japanese press estimates of total losses went as high as $10 billion but were admittedly guesses.

Actress Given High Acclaim

ASHLAND — Virginia Chesse, petite San Francisco actress currently charming audiences as the French princess, Katharine, in "King Henry the Fifth" in the 12th annual Oregon Shakespearean Festival, has won an award as the best actress at San Francisco State College for the 1951-52 season.

The award was made by Alpha Psi Omega, national dramatic society.

The young actress received the award for her portrayal of "Willie" in Tennessee Williams' one-act play, "This Property Is Condemned."

Mrs. Chesse and her husband, Dion, both of whom are appearing in several roles in the four festival plays this year, are San Francisco TV performers.

Both have won praise for their work here this year, and Virginia has been particularly outstanding as Kate, princess of France. Her scenes with her woman-in-waiting (Susanne Hanson), in which she tries to learn English, and the scene in which she accepts the proposal of the English King Henry, after playing a romantic card-and-mouse game with him for a while, brought down the house in the first two performances of the colorful chronicle play. The next performance of "Henry V" is Sunday, August 10.

Fumes Kayo 23 Women In Plant

SEATTLE — Twenty-three women were overcome by carbon monoxide fumes at a frozen food packing plant here Tuesday.

The women were working on the food processing line at the Cedar-green Frozen Pack Corp., when they "suddenly began to topple over."

Many of the victims were rescued by other employees. Some managed to make their own way to safety.

Fire Department respirator squads revived the workers at the scene of the south Seattle plant. They were rushed to the hospital by relays of ambulances.

None was believed in serious condition.

Chet Cameron, plant superintendent, said the fumes came from a compressor which was being used to drill holes for a new food processing line.
