

Mrs. A. S. Tyson Makes Report

Mrs. A. S. Tyson, who recently returned from the triennial meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Episcopal Church in Boston, gave an enthusiastic report to the women of St. George's Guild, at a meeting this week.

Eight women represented Oregon at the convention, coming from Salem, Portland, Roseburg and Corvallis. A previous meeting was held in San Francisco, and the 1955 meeting will be in Houston, Tex., she said.

An outstanding feature of the session was the United thank offering service, attended by 8,000 women, representing every Diocese in the United States and every missionary area in which the church functions, said Mrs. Tyson. She said the doors were closed at 7 a. m. for the 8 o'clock meeting, and 4,000 were unable to get in because of the lack of seating space.

She described the Archbishop of Canterbury, who, as the primate of the Church of England, presented "Christianity on the World Scene," as the most interesting speaker. A reception for him and his wife, held in the Boston Museum of Fine Arts, was attended by 15,000 persons, among them Archbishop and Mrs. Perry R. Smith, formerly of Roseburg.

Mrs. Tyson summed up the convention through its theme, "Create and Make New Our Hearts and Minds."

YOUR BODY

ROSEBURG, OREGON — These health articles are written and paid for by Dr. B. A. SMITH, Chiropractic Physician, 1500 Gordon Valley Road, in the interest of public health and to help you understand the body function. Look for these informative articles every Saturday.

Tuberculosis of the spine or Pott's disease is manifested by softening and destruction of a part of the bones of the spine or vertebrae by the germs of tuberculosis. It begins usually in children between the ages of three and five, although at other periods as well. If it goes on without early treatment, it usually leads to deformity of the spine or humpback, and many other conditions, such as abscesses in the groins and back, paralysis, etc. If, on the other hand, treatment is begun early, before there is any, or slight deformity, the disease is frequently cured completely. It is of the greatest importance, then, for parents to recognize spinal disease at the earliest moment.

The seat of the disease is more often in the upper two-thirds of the back. The exciting cause in many instances is a blow or fall received a long time before the spinal disease became evident.

The disease begins slowly. Before any definite symptoms present themselves, the child appears fretful, lies on the floor, is loath to stand or play, and often has a cough or pain in the abdomen.

The chief symptoms are pain, stiffness of the back, awkwardness in moving, weakness, and deformity. Pain is not usually felt in the back except when jarred, although at night the child often cries out in his sleep, owing to his unconscious movements, which cause pain. Neither is tenderness on pressing the spine common.

Stevenson Says He Would Hit Corruption system. I congratulate you for so moving in Miami as I have in Illinois and I pledge you that I will follow the same pattern of action in Washington."

Gen. Dwight Eisenhower, the Republican presidential nominee, has made alleged corruption in government one of his chief talking points in the campaign. Other Republicans have aimed barbs at Stevenson for disclosures that horsemeat was sold as beef in Illinois and that state tax stamps were counterfeited.

Stevenson said he knew that honest criticism could be made of the Democratic national administration. "I claim that our Democratic leaders are and have been pretty good human beings — but I make no claim to infallibility on their behalf."

As he did in campaigning in Oklahoma and Louisiana yesterday, the Illinois governor emphasized what he said were Democratic contributions to the country's prosperity. He called attention to the difference between conditions now and in the depression of 20 years ago when the Republicans were in power.

This approach, linked with his advocacy of civil rights and his opposition to state ownership of the submerged coastal lands left Democrats in Louisiana wondering if he had helped or hurt his chances of obtaining that state's 10 electoral votes. Louisiana gave its 10 votes to the States Rights ticket in 1948.

Florida has eight electoral votes and Eisenhower has been bidding strongly to break into the South by carrying that state.

The core of Stevenson's argument was that despite Democratic mistakes the voter should make his decision by measuring the world as he knows it today against what it was 20 years ago.

After a scheduled mid-afternoon appearance in Tampa, Stevenson planned a major talk in Nashville, Tenn., tonight before flying back to his headquarters at Springfield, Ill.

General Eisenhower Says He'll List Income on making public their income tax returns.

Said Holding Own Rep. Hugh Scott R-Pa. former GOP national chairman, told a reporter he thought Eisenhower was "holding his own" in the campaign and the outlook still appeared promising for his election.

"He has lost some of the extreme liberal support," Scott told a reporter. "But he has gained more conservative votes to offset this loss. I think we'll see a gradual gain ahead."

Eisenhower came to Salt Lake City from a quick sweep through Arizona and New Mexico.

He launched into an assault on the Truman administration in the first sentence of his speech. He said after years in power it "doesn't know where it is going, is afraid it won't get there and is sure it wouldn't know what to do if it arrived."

Slamming at the party he said has been "too long in power," the general referred to the Democratic theme song — "Don't Let Them Take It Away."

He said: "If that had been the theme song of your pioneer forebears they would never have set forth on their historic pilgrimage in the first place . . . and dared to believe that, here, they could make the desert blossom like the rose."

He told the crowd he had entered politics because he became convinced the people "would welcome a change from too many bosses and too much machine politics."

New Polio Vaccine Disclosed By Scientist

Evidence that the weakened Lansing type of virus can produce antibodies was disclosed by Dr. Karl F. Meyer, noted expert on epidemic diseases. Viruses similar to those used in the hen's egg technique were produced two years ago and last July were given their first test on 61 children in a California institution for the feeble minded.

All 61 youngsters had no polio antibodies in their blood before being given the vaccine. But they all developed these antibodies in a few weeks, Dr. Meyer told newsmen.

This establishes that antibodies can be produced in the human bloodstream, where they can attack polio before it gets into the brain and nerves to cause paralysis and sometimes death.
