GUEST BOOK: Tonight at seven, Bob Grant interviews another guest of the Hotel Rose. The latest interview is with Oliver Kola, of Anchorage, Alaska, and resident engineer who is also working on building construction for the United States. Kola points up the beauties of Alaska, suggests a wardrobe for persons wanting to visit the territory, and tells about his trips over the Alcan Highway.

ELECTION COVERAGE: On Tuesday evening, November 4, KRNR is offering listeners a new approach to listening to election returns. The broadcast will originate from the balcony of the Armory. Chief Engineer Max Dick is setting up a broadcast booth to let the staff have full facilities for giving you official, accurate election returns on a city, county, state and national basis. The national coverage will come from the CBS radio network. The state returns will come from the Associated Press wire. The city and county results will be tabulated from the county-wide correspondents of the News-Review. In addition there will be interviews with local political figures who are actively engaged in the election campaign. As an added feature, and between the election returns, KRNR will offer music from the Paul Bunyan band to be held at the Armory Tuesday night.

Two fine bands will provide the music for the dancing enjoyment of persons who want to attend the dance and hear the election returns at the same place. If you can't attend the dance and yet want up to the minute coverage of the election results from around the nation spurred on by the excitement of a dance party join with us for a full evening on KRNR Election night.

Wasn't Halloween Trick, Druggist Soon Learns

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—An Oklahoma City druggist thought it was a little too early to play "trick or treat" so he turned his back on a customer with a halloween mask who pointed a gun at him. A bullet whizzed through his suit. The stranger pocketed an undetermined amount of cash from the register and walked out.
